

REPEAL FINDS OHIO'S PROBLEM UNSETTLED

Roosevelt to Propose Central Bank to Supplant Federal Reserve

WASHINGTON—Critics of the President's monetary policy "ain't heard nuthin'."

His next move will really give them something to howl about—if they have any breath left after the shock. His surprise gold manipulation announcement will appear as a love tap in contrast to the jolt he is now preparing.

The proposal is of a dual nature: currency stabilization coupled with legislation to supplant the Federal Reserve system with a government controlled and operated central bank. It would be somewhat similar to the central banking systems of Europe.

Details of the plan are being worked out in strictest secrecy. Only a few of the innermost Presidential circle are in on the know.

Present strategy is to spring the plan immediately upon the convening of Congress. By this strategy it is hoped to get the jump on both the extreme inflationists and the "second money" men, and jam the legislation through before they have had a chance to organize effective resistance.

Cuban Chaos

Behind the confused reports which come out of Cuba are two important factors which few people outside the State Department realize.

One is that American policy is battling to prevent a repetition of the tyranny of Dictator Machado. The other is that this policy has been placed on the spot by the British and other governments.

Contrary to the general impression, Ambassador Welles convinced Roosevelt 100 per cent regarding the wisdom of non-recognition. He said that President Grau had jailed 2,000 innocent political prisoners. Machado's maximum was $90. He asserted that five or six political killings last night was the average under Grau. When Machado killed one it was front page news.

He argued that ninety per cent of the Cuban people were bitterly opposed to Grau, that American recognition would saddle the Cuban people with a tyrant they could not get rid of. This was behind the ovation given Welles when he returned.

Meanwhile, however, the British have been moving to embarrass American policy. Previous reports that the Irish Free State contemplated recognition were garbled. Conny Michael MacWhite, Irish Minister, went to the State Department with a warning that the British Foreign Office was sounding out the Dominions regarding recognition. It was a friendly tip to the U. S. A.

Meanwhile the Mexicans were busy toward the same end. Having already recognized Grau, they tried to get the Chileans and Brazilians to follow suit. The Brazilian Foreign Minister spoke Secretary Hull about it when he passed through, enroute to Montevideo. But Hull stood pat. So also did Roosevelt. He opposed a regime which out-machado Machado.

GEN. MOSELEY LAUDS SCOUTS; COURT IS HELD

Splendid Talk Feature of Divisional Dinner; John Robinson Honored

RENICK PRESIDES

Many Scouts Receive Honor Court Awards

Probably the finest meeting of Boy Scouts, parents and scout officials ever held in Pickaway-co was attended by a large crowd at the Methodist Episcopal church, Monday evening. The occasion was the annual divisional dinner which was followed by an impressive Court of Honor.

During the evening John Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Robinson, was named an Eagle scout, the highest goal of any scout, by Tom A. Renick, the evening's toastmaster and Pickaway-co's first Eagle scout. William Weldon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Turney Weldon, received the honor three months ago. Both the new Eagle scouts are members of Troop 107, sponsored by the Kiwanis club.

ADDRESS FEATURE

While the Honor Court, in which many scouts received promotion and merit badges, was highly impressive the feature of the program was an address by Major General George Van Horn Moseley, commander of the Fifth corps area of the U. S. army with headquarters at Fort Hayes, Columbus. Major General Moseley, dressed in his army uniform which he said he hoped would make some persons mistake him for a Boy Scout, opened his address by saying: "We should rededicate ourselves in the youth of this nation and trust in them to lead us through."

"I would divide the success of the Boy Scout movement into three parts; first, the overhead structure; second, community support; and third, the boys themselves."

"You will observe," the speaker said, "that I have made no mention of finance because if the community spirit is a good one that will take care of itself."

"I am sure the overhead structure is sufficient because I have had many contacts with the scout leaders, not only of Ohio but of other states, and I find them excellent, outstanding men. To get down to a more immediate overhead structure I will compare the scoutmaster to the army captain. In the army we look to the captain as the man responsible for the efficiency of our various companies, and in scouting it is natural that the scoutmaster take the place of the captain. It is necessary for the scoutmaster to conduct a varied program to retain and increase the interest of his scouts."

COMMUNITY NEED

Major General Moseley cited the assistance the community can be to the scout troops and then placed much stress upon the parents and especially upon the burden of the mother. "Mothers," the speaker went on, "are always

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oyer, Circleville-twp, announce the birth of a son late Monday night.

COUNCIL MEETS 3 UTILITIES CONVENTION VOTES

Lindberghs Seek Artificial Wave

Motorboats May Be Used to Make Waves to Permit Heavy-Laden Plane to Begin Atlantic Flight To Brazil; Flyer and Wife Delayed Two Full Days.

BATHURST, Gambia, British West Africa, Dec. 5.—Denied by nature the choppy water surface necessary for the take-off of their heavily-loaded seaplane, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today considered providing it artificially. Already held here for more than two full days after they first tried to start their 1,800-mile hop over the south Atlantic to Brazil, the Lindberghs sought some means of eliminating the glassy smoothness of the Gambia river, which, by suction on the pontoons, has kept the plane from taking the air. With the tropical calm still prevailing, the Lindberghs were advised by local authorities of two measures which have been helpful in the past.

New Steel Mogul

William J. Filbert, who succeeds Myron C. Taylor as finance head of U. S. Steel Corporation, Taylor, while retaining his other posts with the corporation, will retire on January 1. Filbert at the time of his new appointment was vice-chairman of the finance committee.

FIREMEN TO REPAIR TOYS

Boy Scouts To Assist in Work; Paint, Tacks, Other Things Are Needed.

Members of the Circleville fire department have again consented to paint and repair discarded toys to be distributed to needy children of the city on the night before Christmas.

Firemen will be assisted by members of Boy Scout Troops 107 and 158.

Members of the fire department were somewhat reluctant about taking up the work this year because of difficulty they experienced in obtaining supplies, such as paint, wire, tacks and other things a year ago. With the scouts promising to gather the toys for repair, and several interested persons ready to contribute paint and the other needed things, they decided to again do their part to make Christmas a success for the poor as well as those who would have a happy Christmas regardless.

So, you boys and girls who have tossed varied playthings into the clothes-dress, the playroom, the cellar and other places, gather them together and see that they get to the engine house. If you are unable to take the toys to the fire department telephone the station. Boy Scouts will make regular visits to the fire house to learn if there are any errands they can do, so someone will be after your toys.

Remember, even though you have tossed your old toys aside some child may derive much good from them.

Do your part to make this a real Christmas.

Council Buys Plans to Landscape Hospital Grounds

CITIZENS ACTIVE

Need of Work on Creek Stressed by Group

Approval of two Civil Works administration projects for this city was expected this afternoon after plans had been presented to G. J. Kane, chief Civil Works engineer. If approved, workmen will be assigned to the jobs Wednesday or Thursday.

One is the landscape project at Berger hospital. Mayor B. T. Hedges called city council into special session Monday night and, under suspension of rules, an ordinance was passed to appropriate $165 to purchase a plan drawn by G. L. Lynch, Columbus engineer. The drawing is a very complete one and officials believe well worth the money paid for it.

TC STRAIGHTEN CREEK

The other project is straightening and cleaning Hargus creek through the city to eliminate the flood dangers which now prevail. This project is being supported especially by residents of N. Comst. who have formed an association in an effort to eliminate the danger of this quick-running stream. H. W. Plum is president of the association. Homer Fullen is secretary and W. E. Crist is treasurer.

As it now winds through the edge of the city Hargus creek provides a constant menace. Many recall the hazards of several years ago when nearly every house in that section of town was filled with water which had left the banks of the creek. Not only does the water menace the houses and health of the neighborhood

Pamphlet Charges Effort to 'Muzzle' Press; Dictatorship Alleged.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Indications that the convening of the Congress next month may signalize a rift in the executive-legislative "honeymoon" were multiplied today as the Republican National committee took off the gloves to strike at the President, the NRA in general and blunt-spoken Gen. Hugh S. Johnson in particular.

In its latest attack, a sequel to that intimated a few weeks ago following official Republican silence during pre-election days, the G. O. P. issued a pamphlet charging the administration with attempting to set up a dictatorship through muzzling the press and warding off of adverse criticism.

Gibing at the administration, the latest broadside bears no title on its cover page. Instead, it quotes "epithets" from utterances by administration leaders, editing them to the President, Gen. Johnson, Speaker Rainey and Donald R. Richberg, NRA counsel.

The caption reads: "Tories—chiselers—dead cats—witch doctors—bank wreckers—traitors!"

Committee Meeting Called This Evening to Hear Water Company

TALK LOCAL RATES

Electric, Gas Are in Regular Session

Within the next 30 hours city council will have met with and discussed rates with officials of three of its four major utility companies, if present expectations hold true.

Called into special meeting Monday evening by Mayor B. T. Hedges to purchase plans for landscaping the Berger hospital grounds, councilmen will again be in session this evening with officials of the Ohio Water Service Co. to be present. The meeting tonight will be a committee session and not open to the public.

2 APPEAR WEDNESDAY

Wednesday evening officials of both electric and gas companies are expected to make their appearance in regular council session. It is understood that action will be taken on ordinances of both companies. The Southern Ohio Electric Co.'s ordinance will embody street-lighting alone since its domestic schedule holds until 1936.

Appearance of both electric and gas company officials will follow committee conferences of the past few weeks.

The water negotiations will be the first for a long while. W. A. Dark, executive of the company, is expected to be here this evening to accompany Harry Denman, local superintendent, to the council chamber.

PROHIBITION ADIEU

Brief Statement Made by Governor White in Opening State Session; Utah to Cast Official Vote Late Today; Legislature Called Wednesday to Be Important Session.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5.—Confining his remarks to a brief statement of the purpose for which the delegates had assembled, Gov. George White this afternoon opened the constitutional convention which will cast Ohio's vote for the repeal of national prohibition.

In his terse message the governor stated that the control of intoxicating liquors presents a problem of first magnitude, but added that the solution does not concern the repeal convention.

"You are concerned only with the question of whether the method of control embodied in the Eighteenth Amendment shall be continued or abolished," the governor told the delegates.

"But if, and when that method shall be abolished and you as citizens shall take your places once again in the ranks of your communities, the effort of the state to cope with this important responsibility should elicit your earnest consideration."

NAMED BY VOTERS

"In the selection of delegates to this convention, the vote of every citizen counted equally with that of every other. Every voter in Ohio had the opportunity to express his choice, and a high percentage of the electorate availed itself of this opportunity. You, therefore, bear the mandate of the people to register the will of the state upon the question to come before you."

All delegates to the constitutional convention were elected as "wets" when Ohio rejected prohibition.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Dec. 5.—It will be late this evening before the Utah repeal convention, after elaborate ceremonies, makes dramatic legal "throughout" its United States after fourteen years of national prohibition.

The 21 delegates to the convention, as well as state officials, today were determined that Utah shall be the thirty-sixth and final state to ratify the twenty-first amendment that will end prohibition.

"We will make certain that no other state shall take this glory away from Utah," asserted Franklin Riter, president of the Utah League for Prohibition Repeal, in outlining elaborate plans for the historic session here.

hition by an $50,000 majority on Nov. 7. There will be 52 delegates, two of whom must be elected after the convention meets to fill vacancies caused by deaths.

Telegraph instruments have been installed on the speakers' rostrum in the House, so that as soon as the delegates are polled the result can be flashed to the secretary of state in Washington.

Ohio's state prohibition law will not expire until Dec. 7, when the constitutional 30-day period after the election will have elapsed.

Even then two strict enforcement laws not automatically repealed will hold back the tide of legal liquor until repealed by a special session of the legislature convenes here tomorrow.

Because of the limited seating capacity of the House galleries and the great demand from persons who wish to hear Ohio sound prohibition's death knell, the entire proceedings will be broadcast over several radio stations.

PLANS DIFFERENT

Two radically divergent liquor control policies will be represented on the convention platform, one by Governor White, who emphatically favors sale of liquor by the glass, and the other by U. S. Sen. Robert J. Bulkley who contends such procedure would be parallel to a return of the saloons.

Senator Bulkley was slated to be permanent chairman of the repeal convention. He came here from Cleveland where he had just finished delivering a spirited attack on sale of liquor by the glass in licensed hotels, clubs and restaurants, a proposal included in the administration's liquor control bill.

But since the convention will concern itself with only one issue: "Shall the Eighteenth Amendment

60,000 Refugees Flee Germany, Expert Says

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Dec. 5.—Sixty thousand refugees, of whom 51,000 were Jews, have fled from Germany since Adolf Hitler ascended to power, James G. McDonald, American acting as high commissioner of the World Committee for the Relief of German refugees, told the governing body of the organization as it convened today.

Delegates from nine of the 12 countries represented on the commission were present at the meeting, the first it has held. MacDonald's address outlined the procedure to be followed by the group in its work, which will be carried out under the League of Nations.

Tigers To Meet Academy Team Here On Friday

Circleville high school Tigers are preparing for their opening basketball game for the season, Friday evening, when Columbus Academy, coached by Bill Hunt, former Ohio State cager, invades the local court.

Coach Pete Herberholz, of the local school, has not announced his starting lineup and probably will not be ready to do so until game time. He has been working with several combinations and in his squad of more than 30 aspirants he expected to be able to name a winning group. With girls' interscholastic games dispensed with because other schools have abandoned the sport the local school will carry a reserve boys' team through the season. The reserves will play on Friday.

The Columbus Academy team is a fast one and will test the Tiger cagers to their fullest extent. Bill Hunt was a member of the renowned team made famous by Johnny Miner, Cookie Cunningham and others and is passing his knowledge of the cage game to the students at the Columbus school.

No positive headway has been made toward obtaining the Circleville Athletic club gymnasium for the school's game. It is expected something definite, one way or another, will be learned this week although, probably, not in time for the Friday game.

WARNER OPPOSES COLUMBIA CHOICE

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Pop Warner, coach of Temple university, whose team did not play Columbia, cast the lone dissenting vote today among eastern coaches on the selection of Columbia for the Rose Bowl game.

Said Warner: "I do not see where Columbia should be selected. I believe Stanford will be too much for them. Pitt has a much better record. Michigan would be a good representative. Next to Pitt I would book Nebraska and then Alabama. Fordham had the most power and ruggedness but, of course, was beaten by two coast teams."

Said Rip Miller, Navy coach: "Columbia gave us more trouble than either Army or Princeton, and I believe that at present it is the strongest team in the east with the possible exception of Fordham. Columbia's only weakness is a lack of reserves, but it has a seasoned team that should be able to hold on through the game. It has a skillful line and a real sparkplug in Cliff Montgomery."

Said Fritz Crisler, Princeton coach: "I want to congratulate Columbia and wish them success. I hope they meet with good weather, which is the main problem, going from the cold of the east to the warmth of California is hard and I hope Columbia has success despite the obstacles."

Name Columbia To Visit Coast

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It will be Columbia, the gem of the Atlantic, vs. Stanford, the pride of the Pacific, in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

This classic of the roses was assured today after Columbia had accepted the invitation to visit California and Lou Little, coach of the light blue and white, again called his squad into action. The Lions will leave here Dec. 19 and return Jan. 5.

And so, for the first time in history, California will see a truly representative New York team in action, and for the first time, too, the entire eastern seaboard will be united in rooting for the visiting team.

For the east, and particularly New York, and more particularly still, Broadway, holds a warm spot in its heart for Columbia. There are many reasons for this affection.

Columbia, one of the oldest colleges in the country, was founded in 1754 and through all the succeeding generations it has kept its place in the front rank of educational institutions.

Around the turn of the century Columbia had some great football teams. Then the lid was clamped down and for many years, until 1915, Columbia was without a team, and for several years after the war their teams ranked only with such minor colleges as Amherst, Middlebury and Williams. In fact, there were years when little Williams had no trouble in trimming Columbia.

But with the advent of big Lou Little a few years ago there came a surprising change. The former all-American Penn tackle, who had worked wonders at Georgetown, came to the big town and at once proceeded to demonstrate that he could take almost any kind of material and develop it into a real team.

Soon his light-weighted teams began to bowl over major opponents. They reached their peak this season when they went through the season with only one defeat and that one chalked up against the overconfident Lions by the unbeaten and untied Princeton Tigers. However, many good judges believe that were the two teams to play today the score of that game would be reversed.

Columbia may lose to Stanford but not before California has seen a team that fights to the last bell; A submarine line that charges like a cavalry squadron and a backfield that can and will produce more trick stuff than any other team in the country.

Moreover, there is no smarter team to be found anywhere. All Lou Little's teams are smart but this one is tops in that respect.

SIX TO GRADUATE

Six of the regulars, led by Captain Cliff Montgomery, who is rated second only to Southern California's Cotton Warburton, are veterans who will play their last college game New Year's Day. One of them, Red Matal, is without doubt an all-American end, who is so fierce in his recklessness, Devil-may-care onslaught that a powerful Syracuse team wound up with a net loss of 30 yards trying to circle his end.

Yes, with the eyes of the nation upon them, Columbia will give Stanford the battle of its life, and if Columbia loses, it probably will be when the weight of Stanford reserves wear down Lou Little's small fighting band of regulars.

District of Columbia

The District of Columbia, which includes the city of Washington, is not in any state but is a federal district, whose residents are without representation in congress. It was cut out of the state of Maryland.

CONVERSATION IN A CLOTHES CLOSET

FIRST COAT-HANGER: "I wish the boss would get a new overcoat—I've been holding this one for him a terrible long time."

SECOND COAT-HANGER: "Say, you're lucky—I've been hanging here without holding ANYTHING for almost four years!"

FOR TWO, three years you've been saying, "This overcoat's in fair shape—guess it'll do another winter," or "I think I can get along without buying a new suit."

And probably you COULD still make them do a while longer . . . but SHOULD you? Isn't this the time to give your clothes a "new deal?" Is there any real economy in looking shabby?

Certainly, so far as price is concerned, you couldn't choose a better moment. FOR CLOTHING PRICES TODAY ARE LOWER THAN THEY ARE LIKELY TO BE AGAIN!

In the past four years everything in the clothing industry has been topsy-turvy. Because people were making their old clothes do, retailers couldn't sell their stocks. Because retailers couldn't sell, they couldn't buy from the manufacturer. Because the manufacturer had no orders, he had to stop buying cloth. Because the cloth makers had no business, they stopped buying yarn. Because the yarn spinners were idle, they stopped buying wool.

All along the line wages were cut, labor was laid off, and the worth of a man's head or hands kept shrinking away. It was a situation in which neither a human being nor his handiwork had any true value any more.

While you have this paper in your hand, look over the advertisements for overcoat and suit bargains that are still to be had. Then act now to take advantage of present favorable prices.

Now the tide has turned. Under the terms of the NRA code a worker HAS to receive a fair living wage. The Government has set out to make everything . . . both a man's time and the product of his labor . . . WORTH SOMETHING AGAIN.

Wool . . . yarn . . . cloth . . . clothing . . . all are necessary to cover our nakedness, and all need human labor to produce. THEREFORE THE FINAL COST OF THE FINISHED PRODUCT IS BOUND TO GO UP.

This process is now under way. Since February pay rolls in the clothing industry have increased 32½%. Wool has gone up 49%. Cotton goods are up 90%. Other materials have kept pace. But NOW . . . today . . . there are still new winter stocks to be had at amazingly low prices . . . real bargains for keen buyers. Only remember this—such opportunities are limited. NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

All Ready For Music-Comic

The committee reports that the cast and choruses and group numbers, in fact, everything is in readiness for the big production, "The World's All Right" which is to be staged Wednesday and Thursday nights, December 6 and 7, in the Grand Opera House.

The scene is laid in the broadcasting studio of W-A-R, whose call letters stand for "World's All Right."

The plot revolves around the leading character, Jimmy Waddell. This part is played by Charles Kirkpatrick, and his sweetheart, Jane, Mary Mae Haswell, his secretary, are trying to keep the bill collectors away and the program going so that they may sell some advertising on their station before it is placed in the hands of the receivers. They hope to get Mr. Dinkell of Dinkell Pickles, Inc., played by Earl Hoffman, to buy an hour for $10,000.

THEN COMES JOE

Everything is set for a big program when things start happening. The talent quits. A bill collector hounds them for past-due bills and threatens to turn off the electric current. The bill collector's part is played by George Griffith. All the time this excitement is going on, Jimmy and Jane fill in with impromptu impersonations and song and dance numbers to keep the program going.

When things look the worst, the comedy lead, Joe, the office boy, played by Gladden Troutman, comes in to rehearse his act. The talent in the studio is turned on and he actually broadcasts his number to the world. It is a sensational success. Thousands of telegrams flow in. Mr. Dinkell not only buys the program for $10,000 but pays $27,500 in order to get it away from his competitors. Of course, this means they do not have to close the station, and Jimmy and Jane get married. Joe is made vice president of the company and gets his first square meal in three weeks.

Woven through this plot are spectacular musical scenes, group numbers and solo parts of the show. The show is unique because, instead of the audience listening to a program through a radio where they cannot see the talent perform, "The World's All Right" brings the entertainers right before their eyes.

TINY TOT PARADE

The first feature number is the children's hour featuring Miss Marie Richey as the Tell-Me-A-Story Lady. She is assisted by a hundred local children in the Tiny Tot Parade. These little folks give you a scene that is amusing and clever and will hold appeal for the most sophisticated people.

THE FIRST THING I'M GOING TO BUY—IS A MAYTAG

"With prices going up I want to buy a lot of things. But not another thing till I get a Maytag. Because with a Maytag, I can save money to buy other things."

- That's sensible buying. Because it is buying quality you can use—quality that pays a weekly return on your money.
- The Maytag washes clothes faster, washes them more thoroughly, more gently and at lower cost per washing because it is a better designed, better built washer.
- Select your Maytag at today's low prices.

The next big group number is the Sunshine Chorus. This has a big chorus from the High School Glee club, and two girls' choruses in colorful costumes doing clever routines to the numbers "Whistle and Blow Your Blues Away," and "Smile in the Morning and Smile in the Night."

A novelty quartette number using an arrangement of the famous old railroad ditty, "Casey Jones," "Oh Mamie Riley," and "They Kept the Pig in the Parlor," is an outstanding feature.

Next the hill-billies give "My Blue Ridge Mountain Home" and "They Cut Down the Old Pine Tree." In this number we also have an old-time square dance with a fiddler and guitar player and a special comedy feature entitled, "Frankie and Johnnie" in which the old time melodrama is pantomimed. This pantomime is one of the high spots of comedy in the production and is pantomimed by some of the best actors in the company.

In direct contrast to this number we find Wendell Boyer appearing as Skipper Ericson. He will give a special interpretation of that dramatic number, "I'm Waiting for Ships That Never Come In." He will be assisted by eight girls dressed in sailor costumes.

Including all types of music in this big broadcast, it would of course, be incomplete without a bit of red music. So the next number on the varied program is by the Vested Choir. This number is very majestic and inspiring.

but the fire hazard is great when water from the creek crosses the street. The fire department would not be able to render any aid in case of flames if the street should be inundated.

The county commissioners look favorably upon both projects and it is hoped Engineer Kane will also cast a favorable eye in the direction of the two jobs.

2C. W. A. JOBS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5.—Aided by the hearty co-operation of Governor George White and the heads of all state departments, the State Civil Works administration today had made marked progress toward its ultimate goal—that of placing Ohio's unemployed on jobs for the winter.

RELIEF IS SLASHED

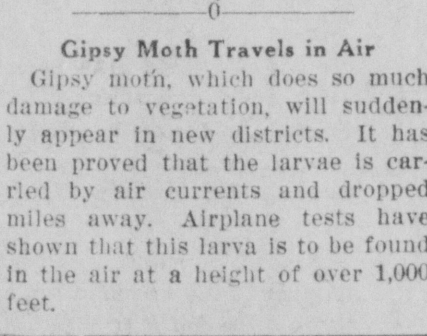

Approximately 124,000 heads of families throughout the state are at work on federal, state and municipal civil works projects, according to information reaching Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, chairman of the state civil works and relief commissions. Of this number, it was estimated that 110,000 had been taken from relief rolls and assigned to jobs and 14,000 were men who had been idle but not on the relief rolls.

Instructions were issued by Major E. O. Braught, executive director, state civil works administration, to the county civil works administrators to make every effort to assign all unemployed workers available under existing quotas to work by next Wednesday. If this is accomplished, a total of 165,000 unemployed workers will have been assigned to jobs on civil works projects in the Buckeye state by December 6.

Upon being informed that all existing quotas have been exhausted, Braught will apply to the proper federal authorities at Washington, D. C., for permission to put an additional 55,000 Ohio unemployed men to work, or a total of 220,000 by December 15.

Gipsy Moth Travels in Air

Gipsy moth, which does so much damage to vegetation, will suddenly appear in new districts. It has been proved that the larvae is carried by air currents and dropped miles away. Airplane tests have shown that this larva is to be found in the air at a height of over 1,000 feet.

New Power by Radio May Turn World's Wheels

Announcement by Nikola Tesla, celebrated American inventor and physicist, that he has developed a device to harness and utilize cosmic energy opens a wonderful field of possibilities and promises to revolutionize the world's industry. The new power, derived from cosmic rays emanating from the sun, could be used to operate ships, trains, factories and airplanes or anything else driven by machinery—and all without the use of coal, oil, gas or other established fuel. The energy could be transmitted by wireless from a central plant to any spot on the globe, on land, at sea or in the air. This a plane could fly, a ship could sail, autos and trains run without refueling just as long as they held together.

QUIET PREVAILS IN LOUISIANA VOTING

HAMMOND, La., Dec. 5.—An ominous quiet hung over the sixth Congressional district today as forces opposing and supporting Senator Huey P. Long awaited developments following opening of the polls in a special congressional election fraught with possibilities of violence and bloodshed.

There was an air of tenseness over the 12 parishes of the district as armed citizens and some 300 specially-appointed deputies prepared to enforce court injunctions against the election.

"Stay away from the polls" was the watchword on the lips of thousands of men following further balloting and gunfire last night as a result of a rising tide of indignation against the "Kingfish" and Governor O. K. Allen, who attempted a political coup designed to elect Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp as the unopposed candidate to succeed her husband, the late Bolivar E. Kemp.

MacINTYRE GUILTY

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5.—John MacIntyre, former supervisor in the city division of parks and forestry, today waited sentence on three charges of payroll padding, on which he was convicted by a police court jury yesterday afternoon.

Judge Joseph M. Clifford will pass sentence next Saturday. Defense attorneys indicated an appeal will be taken.

Horsehair Business

Horsehair is collected, graded and exported by Argentina to the amount of almost 3,000 tons a year.

TRIO INDICTED FOR ROBBERY MAE WEST

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Three men today were under indictment by a grand jury on a charge of having robbed Mae West, the actress, of more than $15,000 in jewels and cash in September, 1932.

They were Harry Voller, said by the district attorney's office here to be listed as a Chicago enemy; Edward H. "Happy" Friedman, eastern gangster, and Harry Cohen, Detroit.

Attired in a long trailing black satin street dress, a knitted black beret, white gloves, fox fur and satin pumps Miss West made an unexpected personal appearance before the grand jury.

HOLD AUTOPSY AS TRIAL DATE NEARS

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Preparing for the trial next month of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynkoop, under indictment for murder, prosecutors and coroner's physicians today studied results of a secret exhumation of the body of Rheta Gardner Wynkoop.

Reexamination of Mrs. Wynkoop's body was swiftly carried out at Indianapolis on orders of coroner Frank Walsh who explained the exhumation was decided on to corroborate medical evidence to be used against the woman physician and mother-in-law of the slain girl.

Dr. James Kearns and Dr. John Frost, who made the examination, refused to discuss their findings and on their arrival here made a report to Coroner Walsh.

ready for any emergency. Many are not trained for many crises which appear in a lifetime but they adapt themselves to whatever is demanded of them.

"After all," he declared, "the boy is the principal thing. They should learn how to seek opportunity and with the aid of their parents their minds should be formed properly to make them stick to their cause. It is one duty of the parents to teach their sons to be orderly in reasoning."

Major General Moseley concluded by saying: "All scouts should keep their minds on their objectives with the Eagle Scout rank as their ideal."

Previous to General Moseley's address, C. E. Shriner, scout commissioner, outlined the 10-year program of scouting and the desire of the national organization to develop four-year scouts.

The meeting opened at 6:30 p. m. with the bugler blowing assembly after which the colors were paraded by members of Troop 107. The Pledge to the Flag was led by Scout Horace Gilmore with invocation following by Rev. W. A. Moore, of Williamsport.

During the dinner served by ladies of the M. E. church a group of high school pupils provided music with Troops 158 and 107 conducting activities on the stage. Group singing led by Karl Herrmann followed the dinner and the actual program was launched when R. L. Brehmer, divisional chairman, outlined the activities of county troops during 1933. He called upon the following to explain their branches of the scout movement: George McDowell, court of honor; Tom Gilliland, commissioner; L. B. Weldon, sea scouting; B. F. Harden, cub activity; Ward Robinson, finance committee; Dr. Joe E. Goeller, court of review; Mack Parrett Jr., civic service. Durward Dowden made a report on camping and presented Troop 107 with an approved camp streamer.

TWO LIFE SCOUTS

John H. Dunlap Jr. presented life scout awards to Mark Maxey of Troop 158 and to William Towers of Troop 107. He presented Star scout awards to seven scouts. Senior patrol leader certificates were given Mark Maxey and Joe F. Bell, the latter of Troop 107.

by Mr. Dunlap but remains with Troop 158.

Recognition of the Silver Beaver was given when R. L. Brehmer, the county's only silver beaver, was called to stand. Scoutmasters and assistants were also called to stand by the toastmaster and Dr. E. J. Lilly, introduced as a man interested in scouting for many years, was given a big hand when introduced by Mr. Renick.

The Eagle award was made to John Robinson at this time.

Edward C. Ebert Jr., of Troop 158, a 12-year-old scout, and William Weldon, of Troop 107, a four-year scout, made two-minute talks after which Mr. Shriner was heard. Ray W. Davis explained Pickaway-co's part in the 10-year program.

Reed Shafer presented four youths with second class certificates and Glen Gelb gave first class certificates to five Scouts. Ludwig Haacker explained the achievement round-up and E. I. Gepfart issued an invitation to attend the scouts' convention in Columbus on Feb. 8 at the Southern Hotel.

Howard Stevenson presented merit badges to 14 scouts after which Mr. Brehmer announced that Ross Kirkpatrick had accepted the appointment as division chairman for 1934. Mr. Kirkpatrick, father of Charles Kirkpatrick, scoutmaster of Troop 107, responded with a short talk. The entire list of 1934 officers will be announced later.

At the conclusion of General Moseley's address the Scout Oath was led by Eagle Scout John Robinson and taps sounded by the bugler closed the meeting.

Other scout executives here besides Mr. Shriner included Kenneth Connelly and Dale M. Reed.

Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant, of the state supreme court, will administer the oath to the 52 delegates, who will then elect a permanent chairman, secretary and clerk.

No opposition has appeared to Senator Bulkeley for permanent chairman and it was reported that Dwight Matchette, House of Representatives clerk, would be named convention clerk. A woman delegate probably will be elected secretary.

about Cigarettes

Not so long ago practically all cigarettes were made by hand

Now, Chesterfields are made by high-speed machines that turn out 750 cigarettes a minute, and the cigarettes are practically not touched by hand.

BY the use of long steel ovens—drying machines of the most modern type—and by aging the leaf tobacco for 30 months—like wine is aged—Chesterfield tobacco is milder and tastes better.

Only pure cigarette paper—the best made—is used for Chesterfield.

And to make sure that everything that goes into Chesterfield is just right, expert chemists test all materials that are used in any way in the manufacture.

Chesterfields are made and packed in clean, up-to-date factories, where the air is changed every 4½ minutes. The moisture-proof package, wrapped in Du Pont's No. 300 Cellophane—the best made—reaches you just as if you went by the factory door.

In a letter to us, an eminent scientist says:
"Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink."

Chesterfield cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink

Treasury Has Charge

THE treasury department seems to have the upper hand in the president's gold buying and financial policy at Washington and the power of the federal reserve board over money matters is rapidly declining. The treasury officials are gradually taking over the dominant position.

It is no secret that officials of the federal reserve lack sympathy with the president's plan and their advice is asked more as a matter of technique and courtesy. At the same time, the New York Federal reserve bank has carried out the government orders on gold purchases without protest.

It appears that the federal reserve is slated to become merely the complaisant assistant of the treasury and no longer will have the high place in matters of currency.

An instance occurred within the last few days which showed that the federal reserve board is subservient to others. The October monthly bulletin issued by the federal reserve contained business figures, which tended to show that recovery had not progressed nearly so far as figures issued by other departments of the government made it appear.

General Johnson, head of the NRA was one of the protestants. The next issue of the bulletin contained no figures and the officials contended themselves merely with publishing President Roosevelt's address given to the nation at the time he announced the gold purchase plan.

You find bulls, bears and lambs in Wall Street. But no elephants. Elephants have long memories.

A Press Muzzler

THE fight for a free press is never won. Thin-skinned politicians, resentful of publicity directed at their acts, are forever yearning for a muzzled press. Which is exactly the reason why the freedom of the press clause was inserted in the constitution as well as the reason why it will never be taken out.

The latest convert to the press-muzzlers is Rep. William T. Schulte, Democrat of the First Indiana district. The Hon. Schulte predicted in a speech in Gary that legislation muzzling the press would be passed by that next congress. "And," added Hon. Schulte, "it needs muzzling."

When congress was granted the right to amend the constitution the Indiana politician must bother to explain. However, Indiana newspapers should scrutinize the career of this bird closely. The phrase, "vigilance of the press," was invented for political specimens of this sort who, too often, find their way into public office.

Just imagine what those white house tea cups might tell if they could talk.

"Night and Day"

Apparently Rita Gentry Bishop, 19-year-old Chicagoan, has a keen sense of humor, for she can laugh although she is charged with bigamy. Rita, it is alleged, married a window trimmer, who worked days, in September and eloped with a cafe proprietor, who works nights, in November. The latter brought the charge.

A Tough Season

"THAT'S MY BOY!"
by FRANCIS WALLACE
AUTHOR OF "HUDDLE"

CHAPTER FORTY-NINE

Other people were going in when they got to the Bijou and everybody wanted to stop and talk to him but Pop just kept going on like an Indian. Mom had given him a dollar before they left the house and he walked right up to the window and laid it down like he was going to the opera house in New York. But George Kauffman was there and he smiled and said to Pop:

"Your money is no good here tonight, Mr. Randolph."

Mom saw that eye go down and she was deathly afraid Pop was going to bawl George Kauffman out right there because there was no telling what he would say or do when he was like this; but George said:

"Tommy's folks are guests of the house tonight—I'll take you down to your reserved seats myself." And here George had a dress suit on.

Pop smiled, just a bit, but he didn't even say thank you and Mom had to go so fast to keep up with him that she hardly got a look at the pictures of Tommy outside.

Inside they were going down the aisle following George Kauffman. The lights were still on and the place was almost filled up and when everybody saw them coming they started to clap. It was all Mom could do to keep from crying right out loud; but Pop just took her arm and squeezed it tight and he was so grand that Mom felt like a great lady herself and they went down the aisle as though nothing had happened. Mom had never been so proud of Pop. She thought Coolidge himself couldn't have done it better.

Then Mom got mad. There was Cousin Emmy standing up, waving her skinny arms for Mom to come where she was, letting everybody know that she was one of the family too; and Mom pretended not to see her making a show of herself and would have gone somewhere else; but that was right where George Kauffman took them to their reserved seats.

And there, on one side of her was Pop and the other side of her was the Mayor; and just in front of her was Charlie Whitney, and with him was the Superintendent of Schools, R. K. Washburn.

And the Mayor shook hands with her and Pop, and right into her eyes, he did, like he had never done before; and Mom could see he had the same pretty blue eyes he had when he was a boy; and somehow Charlie looked so pleased you would have thought Tommy was his boy. And everybody was cheering and Mom felt like it was in a dream and she wished Tommy could be there, it was so wonderful, except that Cousin Emmy was still standing up, smiling to Mom, showing her teeth, and waving her skinny arms, still wearing the flowered chiffon. Even then Mom almost had to laugh at the way Pop took it, hardly a smile except way back in his eyes. He sure carried it off.

Then the lights went off and the picture came on the screen and Mom heard Pop groan and reach down for his feet. She knew, sure as anything, he was going to loosen his shoes; she prayed he wouldn't take them clear off because his feet would be sure to be swelled—and wouldn't it be a nice howdy-do to end the evening with him not able to get his shoes back on?

Then Mom forgot Pop's feet. In the darkness, where nobody could see, she was crying.

Then she had to laugh again; for Pop was nudging her. He was winking at her, the devil. Just like when they were married, while he was putting the ring on her finger.

The program opened up with a "Mickey Mouse" and Mom smiled; because the mouse got the best of the cat, and Butcher Brown would be sure to say tomorrow that he wouldn't have done that to Albert. Then there was a newsreel and a lot of advertisements and Pop got fidgety waiting through it all and started to look up where the man was showing the pictures. Pop had a mad look on him and Mom had to nudge him to make him turn around and be patient—although she could hardly wait herself; but Pop might even say something out loud which would have spoiled everything since George Kauffman had been so nice about having the Mayor and R. K. Washburn and Charlie Whitney in reserved seats. Just for a minute Mom thought it was too bad the old grandmother wasn't there, too, right down front where she could see what kind of people the Serogins were now.

Then, without any notice another picture jumped right out on the screen and . . . there was her Tommy!

There was little sleep for Mom that night, just catnaps and dozes.

She would wake up from these every time Pop moved in his sleep; even Pop seemed to be disturbed and he could sleep through an earthquake if the house was falling down. Mom was more of a light sleeper and now her head was full of noise and chatter and pictures of this and that, on the screen and off, of things which happened during that wonderful evening.

Tommy was so grand and big and he certainly left the rest of the movie actors in the shade for looks. It was funny to sit and watch her own boy making love, particularly to that bold Valeska Mourat; and it was to Tommy's credit that you could see he was just acting because he had to, and he wasn't really falling in love with her. Once he had looked right at Mom while he was supposed to be kissing Valeska Mourat, just like he was telling her . . . don't pay any attention to this, Mom.

He certainly showed them in the football—although every time Mom thought of the football she shook her head, even in her sleep, and thanked God he was through with all that; and she was glad she had never seen him play the football because then she would have worried herself sick more than she had. It was a good picture, Mom thought, and Jack Devere was very comic but there wasn't enough of Tommy in it. But everybody seemed to like it, particularly Cousin Emmy, who made Mom mad every time she stuck her hands out in front of her to clap and looked around at everybody to see if they could see her and her silly grin. Even Pop noticed her and he wasn't one to pay attention to things like that.

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA IS CURABLE

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

DURING THE past decade numerous important discoveries have been made in the medical world. Little was known about certain ailments before and many were considered incurable. For example, pernicious anemia formerly considered a hopeless affliction, is now regarded as curable. This disease was greatly dreaded of course; those stricken with it lived an average of between two and three years and the first ray of hope offered to victims of this disorder was the discovery that liver was beneficial in the treatment of simple anemia. Following this important discovery came the announcement that a liver diet would cure pernicious anemia, too, providing the disease was recognized in its early stages and the treatment given over a prolonged period.

Liver Extract Is Beneficial
As a result of continued investigation, a liver extract was developed. This is given to the sufferer in the form of hypodermic injection. Its beneficial action is more rapid and more permanent than when liver is given in the diet. Of course, liver and powdered liver extracts have their place in the treatment of pernicious anemia and their value should not be overlooked.

I am often asked to recite the symptoms of pernicious anemia. The symptoms vary. The sufferer may complain simply of headache and listlessness, or he may have shortness of breath, swelling of the feet, nausea, indigestion, diarrhea or other more serious complaints.

Bear in mind that anemia is a disturbance of the blood. It is characterized by a marked reduction in the number of red cells in the blood stream and a lessening of the quantity of hemoglobin, the coloring matter of the blood. It is only by means of a blood count that the diagnosis can be made.

Value of Blood Test
The blood test reveals the number of red and white blood corpuscles and the hemoglobin content. It furnishes important information from the shape and size of the red blood corpuscles. In this way an accurate diagnosis can be made.

Do not confuse pernicious anemia with other forms of anemia which may result from great loss of blood, as in an accident or from operation. They are also encountered in severe infectious diseases, in undernourishment, and in other disturbances of the body. These types of anemia differ from pernicious anemia and require different treatment.

The MONTHS IN HISTORY

by M. McM. Jones
DECEMBER

The last month of the year. In the Roman calendar the year was divided into ten months, the last of which was called December or tenth and this name was retained when the calendar was altered. The number of days given to December varied but was finally settled at thirty-one.

The Saxons called it winter-monat or winter month, and heligh-monat or Holy month from the fact that Christmas fell on the twenty-fifth day of the month. Dec. 22 is the winter Solstice, when days are short and nights are long.

"The poetry of earth is ceasing never." On a lone winter evening when the store there shrills The cricket's song in warmth increasing ever And seems to one, in drowsiness half lost The grasshopper's among some grassy hills."

—John Keats

The birthstone for December is the turquoise, the flower is the Holly. Trees are bare, migratory birds have gone to their winter homes in the South.

"The north wind doth blow and we shall have snow, not so much however as there was in days gone by, when sleds were in evidence. An old couplet runs "The snow doesn't choose to come down like it useter."

Can any one remember when there was enough snow in this locality to make a fort or snow man? Those now-a-days who love winter sports are forced to go to Canada.

However occasionally Jack Frost makes pictures on the window pane. Brooks are frozen over, not often enough to skate on. Does any one remember when there was enough snow to make good sleighing? When the sportsman who owned fast horses and sleighs with sleighbells raced up and down Main-st, from the Canal to Mingo-st? Automobiles are insignificant in comparison.

December gave us three presidents: Martin Van Buren, 1782; Andrew Johnson 1865; Woodrow Wilson 1896. George Washington, our beloved first president, died Dec. 31 1799, the last day of the last month of the century.

A number of noted people claim December as their birth month. Joel Chandler Harris, of "Uncle Remus" fame, 1848; The Appleton publishers, 1785; Arthur Brisbane, newspaper man, 1864; Bishop Phillips Brooks, beloved divine, 1835; E. A. Robinson, poet, 1869; Joseph Smith, Mormon leader, 1805; Kit Carson, scout and pioneer, 1809; Admiral George Dewey 1837; Albert Smith, politician and editor, 1873; Jefferson Davis, president of confederacy, 1862.

Among notable events in this month we find Boston Tea party, 1773; The ratification of the 18th amendment to the constitution, abolition of slavery and involuntary servitude. First in importance perhaps was the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, 1620; Gas was first used for lighting, 1816; Monroe Doctrine sent to Congress, 1823, defending American territory from foreign aggression.

Wireless telegraph across Atlantic, 1901; First airplane flight, 1903; George Washington delivered his farewell address to his officers, 1783; Indiana became a state, 1816; Iowa admitted to Union, 1846; Texas admitted to Union, 1845.

The most important event in the month is Christmas celebrated on the 25th. This celebration has come down to us from the ages. As time goes by we forget the significance of the celebration, the birth of the meek and lowly Christ child born in a manger and pay too much attention to the German idea of glitter and feasting.

Cites Destruction of Highway Markers

COLUMBUS—Pointing out that the destruction or mutilation of state highway markers might lead to auto accidents and deaths, Harry E. Neal, traffic engineer of the state highway department has issued a warning that vandals would be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The warning was issued following a recent increase in the amount of highway equipment stolen or wilfully defaced by vandals.

There are two ways to lighten the pressing burden of debts. Some people wait for an act of Congress and some just change grocers.

Coming to The Cliftona Theatre

"Beauty for Sale," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature which opens Wednesday at the Cliftona Theatre, is a daring picture of the sensational Faith Baldwin novel, "Beauty." It is a drama of modern city life, with a particularly intimate locale behind the scenes in a fashionable beauty salon. The story, which ran serially in Cosmopolitan Magazine, was one of the most popular of the past season.

Heading an impressive cast are Madge Evans, Alice Brady, Otto Kruger, Una Merkel, May Robson and Phillips Holmes.

Madge Evans and Otto Kruger in a scene from "Beauty for Sale" coming Wednesday and Thursday to the Cliftona Theatre.

a mad rush on the part of the whiskey ring to hire lobbyists and high-powered executives . . . One of those snatched up in the rush was George Christian, secretary of the late President Harding, recently holding down a soft berth in the Shipping Board. George had his salary reduced $2,000 by the New Deal, had been told he would be eased out soon. He will now work for a distilling firm.

The distillers are going to need Doc Doran, George Christian and more big guns . . . Unlike Son James, Franklin Roosevelt is a hardboiled believer in strictest government liquor control . . . And behind the distillers' codes was one of the biggest knock-down and drag-out battles of the Administration. Professor Tugwell and Secretary Wallace first proposed a complete government monopoly of liquor . . . They wanted to put the United States in the distilling business, limit supply, strictly regulate distribution . . . Other members of the Roosevelt Liquor Committee opposed this bitterly, said the American public had had fourteen years of thirst-regulation, would not stand for any more. They said a government monopoly could not be worked out in the few days remaining before final repeal . . . Roosevelt agreed with the latter, but otherwise backed up Tugwell and Wallace. He favored the strictest possible government control under the AAA and NRA. As a result the distillers debated whether they should not jump the traces and take their case to the public . . . But the shadow of defeat in North and South Carolina was too much. They remembered the latent power of the dry forces, the old Anti-Saloon League . . . Roosevelt had his way.

The dumdam bullet is a bullet formerly used in the British army, where it was called "Mark IV." It resembled the ordinary service bullet except that the leaden core was left uncovered. By making the casing weak at the apex, the bullet spreads out immediately on striking a bone, usually with fatal results. It was first made at the Dumdam arsenal in India.

the world told me that in slightly different guise the same wheeze was current on the Pacific Coast twenty years ago. He may or may not have been wrong. In any event, I like the British version.

A couple from the country have come up to London for a week's visit. They have seats in the first gallery for a performance of a society drama. To them the play proves exceedingly tiresome. In one of the intervals the husband, stifling a yawn, turns to his deeply bored wife.

"What comes next?" he asks.

She consults the program.

"It says 'ere, 'Act four, same as Act one'."

"Owl!" he exclaims, "let's 'op it. I couldn't sit through all the hawful mess again."

RECORD BROKEN
Rogers shattered a tradition at the exposition when he won the reserve championship on his sample of Durum wheat of the "Mindum variety," weighing 66.1 pounds to the bushel. Up to this year a United States exhibitor has always won either the championship or the reserve award in wheat.

From the class champions of Aberdeen Angus, Shorthorns and Herefords, Walter Biggar of Dalbeattie, Scotland, today will choose the grand champion beef steer, the most coveted award of the $25,000,000 show.

Brachiif Model from Pine Plains, N. Y., and owned by Oakleigh Thorne was chosen the prime steer of the Aberdeen Angus to compete against the Shorthorn and Hereford champions today for the grand championship. Two years ago Thorne won the grand championship with an Angus calf.

BRIDGE CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

Two tables of contract bridge were assembled at the home of Mrs. Glen Geib, S. Scioto-st., Monday evening, when she entertained the members of her club and one guest, Miss Gladys Steenrod.

The enjoyable evening at the card tables was concluded with the awarding of high score prizes to Mrs. A. H. Rogers and Mrs. Charles Owens.

PYTHIAN SISTERS TO ELECT OFFICERS

The regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the K. of P. hall, at which time officers will be elected.

The Pythian Sisters will sew for the Red Cross at Memorial hall Wednesday at 10 a. m. A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon.

GUESTS AT DINNER IN WASHINGTON C. H.

Loring Wittich, violinist in an ensemble which played for the Elks' memorial service at Hillsboro, Sunday, and Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, pianist, this city, were guests at an evening dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Lang Johnson, of Washington C. H., following the service.

The dinner complimented the host's and hostess' daughter, Miss Betty Johnson, talented young violinist, who played in the ensemble and rendered several solos at the memorial service.

S. S. CLASS MEETS WITH MRS. MARION

Twenty five members of Mrs. George Marion's Sunday school class of the Methodist Episcopal church enjoyed their annual Christmas party at Mrs. Marion's home on the Lancaster-pk., Monday evening. Assisting the hostess in entertaining the group were Miss Kathryn Marion, Miss Virginia Nelson and Miss Evelyn Adkins.

Green and red were predominant in the attractive decorations throughout the home, with bitter-sweet placed to advantage in the rooms where a most enjoyable evening was spent in games. Prizes were awarded Miss Elizabeth Tolbert and Miss Katherine Kirkpatrick. One new member, Mrs. Marvin Rhoades, was taken in at last night's party.

Liberal donations were received by members of the class to be distributed to needy families in the city.

Bringing the pleasant hours to a close the hostesses served a delectable salad course at the small tables lighted with red tapers.

The hostess committee for the January meeting includes Mrs. P. S. Herberholz, Miss Mildred Ruffer, Miss Bernice Evans and Miss Katherine Kirkpatrick.

Architecture Discussed by Monday Club

Primitive American Architecture and Pioneering and the Great Expansion were the subjects discussed at the regular Monday club session held in the club rooms last night.

Mrs. Howard Jones in presenting the first subject stated that when the first white men reached American shores they found an astounding civilization in Mexico, Central America, northern part of South America and the south western section of the present United States.

Architecture is a social art, creation of many men, and each nation creates its own type. Thus the Mayan people, builders of temples and pyramids surpassing those of ancient Egypt, builders of roads and causeways more enduring than the famed Roman highways were the originators of the architectural features known as the false arch, the flying facade, the terrace. They had a wonderful knowledge of astronomy and their buildings were always properly orientated with the windows usually facing the west. It is thought the ruins of the ancient palaces and temples now found were their public buildings, the Mayan people themselves living in small wooden homes grouped around the civic center.

Public buildings were of two types, temples and palaces. The Mayan people were the Greeks of America, the Aztecs the Romans. Later came the cliff dwellers and the pit dwellers of Arizona, Utah, New Mexico, etc. These ruins are found extending from southern Colorado to Central Mexico, those of the Mesa Verda Canyons being the best known. The ancient cliff dwellers were the originators of the apartment house idea of the set-back, a feature we see in all modern skyscrapers, but none of these primitive people knew of the principle of the chimney. Smoke was allowed to get out and fresh air to get in, in a most haphazard manner.

Mrs. Nickerson told of the march of the pioneer westward. European settlers introducing iron and bricks. The settlers' first need was shelter and food. Usually a dugout or cave served as shelter until a log cabin could be built. On the frontier a log cabin stripped of bark was a mark of wealth. A two story home—luxury indeed. Due to scarcity of timber on western plains, homes were usually dugouts or sod houses. Necessity of building many homes and villages in a short period and the scarcity of building materials had a powerful effect on pioneer architecture, but usually the pioneer built as best he could with the materials at hand using the same forms as his forefathers as nearly as possible.

At the short business session preceding the program, Mrs. R. K. Bales was made chairman of the work of the blind and will soon have a display of their handicraft.

ALTAR SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

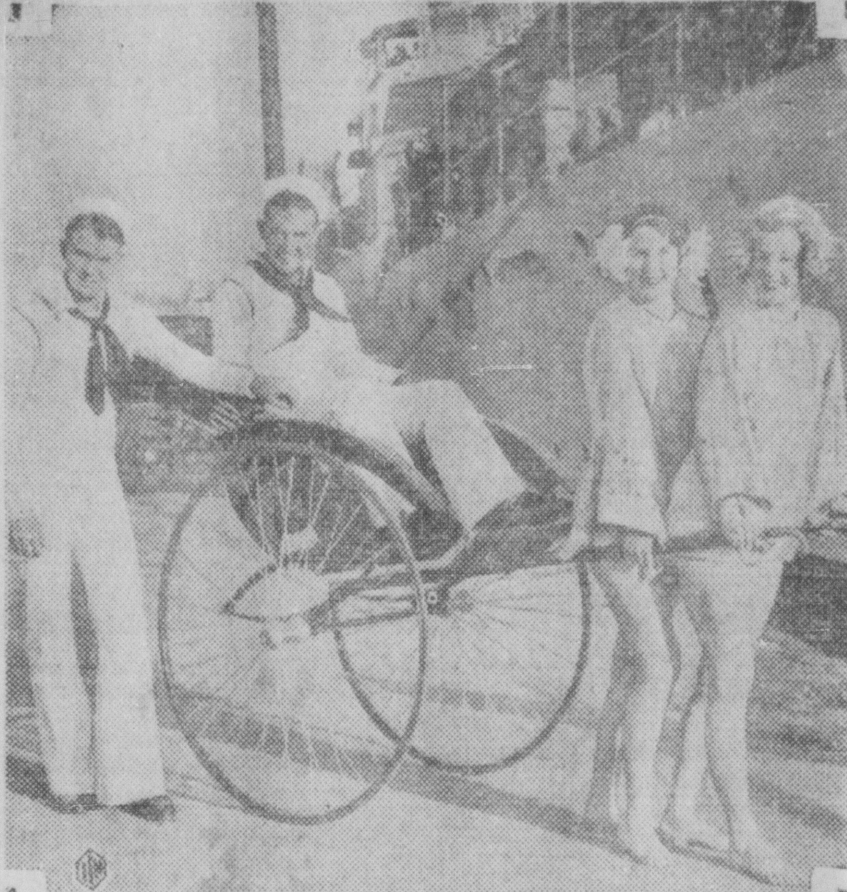

At the monthly meeting of the Altar society of St. Joseph's church held Monday evening in the church basement, officers for the coming year were elected. Mrs. Ralph Head was named president; Mrs. L. J. Hall, vice president; Miss Margaret Shea, secretary, and Miss Mary Howard, treasurer.

Plans were completed for the Rotary Ann banquet to be held next Thursday, also for the card party to be given Dec. 14. Mrs. Ralph Head is chairman of the card party and Miss Mary McKenzie is in charge of the banquet.

Quartet of New Treasury Aides

WASHINGTON GRANGE TO MEET FRIDAY

At the regular meeting of the Washington Grange to be held at the Washington-twp school Friday at 7:30 p. m., the third and fourth degrees will be conferred on a class of candidates. Logan Elm Grange will be in charge of the degree work.

D. U. V. TO ELECT OFFICERS TONIGHT

The Daughters of the Union Veterans will meet in regular session this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Post rooms at Memorial Hall. The annual election of officers will take place at this time. All members are urged to attend.

The D. U. V. sewing circle will meet Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Abbie Barr, Park-pl., with Misses Laura and Emma Mader as hostesses.

Christmas

For piquancy with the Christmas feast serve a cranberry cocktail! Have you ever tasted this tempting drink? Mixed with ginger ale, it is elegance itself!

Cook 4 C. cranberries in 4 C. of water until all the skins pop open. That will take only about 5 minutes. Strain through a cheese cloth. Bring the juice to the boiling point, add 2/3 C. sugar and boil for 2 minutes. Chill and serve the juice cold.

If you are one of those persons who likes the cranberries with the bird, treat yourself to a cranberry salad or cranberry sauce so you can have the tartness with the feast.

Cranberry Salad

1 C. chopped cranberries
1 pkg. lemon gelatin
1 C. boiling water
1/2 C. sugar
1 C. water
1 C. celery, cut in cubes
1/2 C. nut meats

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Cook cranberries with sugar and water and add to the gelatin mixture. Let cool and add the celery and nut meats, and mold. Chill and serve with mayonnaise.

And the Day After

There usually is some turkey or chicken to be used after the big holiday and the aftermath of hash is not a joke. A Chicken or Turkey Ragout may save the day, however, and it is at least worth a try.

Use:
1 slice onion 2 Tbsp. flour
2 Tbsp. bacon fat 1 C. liquid
1 tsp. lemon juice 1/4 tsp. pepper
1 tsp. salt 1/4 tsp. mace
1 C. peas
1/2 C. chopped browned mushrooms
1 C. diced cold chicken or turkey

Melt the bacon fat, brown the onion slice, then remove it. Add the flour, then the liquid, which may be broth or the liquid from canned vegetables, and allow to thicken slightly. Add the rest of the ingredients and place in a greased baking dish. Cover and place in a slow oven (275 degrees) for 1 1/2 to 2 hours.

When it is to be hash, remember that in using leftover meat in any way, use only as much as will be needed for that meal. Do not make up all the leftover and then reheat it for another meal because leftover meat should be heated but once. Carefully prepare the meat by removing all skin, bone and bits of fat and then cut the meat into pieces of fairly equal size. A much more appetizing offering to the family table is produced if you are particular in preparing the leftover meat that is to be used.

Chicken and Rice

1 C. rice 1 Tbsp. salt
2 Qts. boiling water

Wash the rice in cold water and drop into the boiling salted water. When tender, drain in sieve, allowing cold water to flow through.

2 Tbsp. butter 1/4 C. cold diced chicken
2 Tbsp. flour 1/4 tsp. pepper
1/2 C. milk 1/4 tsp. nutmeg

Make a white sauce by melting the butter, adding the flour, then the milk and the salt, and cooking until thickened. Add the cooked rice, chicken and the rest of the mixture. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Serve hot with crisp strips of toast.

Serpentine Mother of Asbestos

When the earth's crust first hardened into rock, millions and millions of years ago, some of the veins in the rock were filled with a stuff called serpentine. It is this serpentine which is the mother of asbestos. Mined from rock in Georgia and Canada, serpentine is ground up into soft white pulpy stuff which is very light and quite tough. The pulp is then broken up, cleaned and carded like wool for weaving into cloth.

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 4. NO. 49

Published by STEVENSON'S

Tuesday, December 5, 1933

As the little boy said when he chopped some of the tail off his pet dog, "It won't be long now." Of course, we refer to the advent of that Big Day—Christmas. Only a few shopping days remain, so we'd advise you to get busy and make your selections now and have the goods delivered later.

It seems to us that right now would be a very appropriate time for the entire family to "club together" and make a purchase of some large article for the use of the entire family. Buy something USEFUL—something for which you've been longing. A new kitchen range—Natural gas, Pyro-fax gas (for country folks), or coal. You'll be surprised how nice they look and how well they are made.

A new living room suite, a new dining room suite, or an Estate

Heatrola would make an excellent Christmas present from the family to the family. All would enjoy such articles and they are very sensible. A year or so ago an Estate Heatrola was purchased by a young lady and we were instructed to deliver it to her parents out in the country. Wasn't that a fine present to her family?

Just in time for Christmas shoppers, we're receiving a new bed-room suite in the Modern style. We just can't imagine a finer gift to the young lady of the house than a suite of this kind.

A dandy bridge set, consisting of a folding table and four folding chairs, has recently been added to our stock of equipment for bridge players. I'd make a fine present to give to Mother or Sister, if they like to play cards. Besides, the chairs will come in very handy when you have guests for dinner.

And don't you think for one moment that Dad wouldn't enjoy one of the easy chairs and stools. Brother, too, would like one of them.

Of course, we have the usual assortment of small gifts, such as smokers, magazine racks and baskets, cedar chests, mirrors, and "other articles too numerous to mention." Lamps? Oh, my yes! Table—bridge—junior—bed—and so forth.

We're not quoting prices this time, because prices are as low or lower than they have ever been at this time of year. Besides, we'd rather sell QUALITY than PRICE any day.

Order that kitchen cabinet now and get that set of hob-nail dinner-ware FREE.

The Biggest user
OF FINE TURKISH TOBACCOS

ALWAYS the finest tobaccos

ALWAYS the finest workmanship

ALWAYS Luckies please!

—why Luckies taste better, smoother

On certain mountains in the Near East is a limited collar of earth—called in Turkish, "Yacca." Tobaccos grown there cost as high as $1.00 a pound. Carefully they are examined, leaf by leaf. Often it takes a man a whole day to select two pounds of certain of these fine tobaccos. Lucky Strike is the world's biggest user of fine Turkish tobaccos. For these tender, delicate Turkish leaves are blended with choice tobaccos from our own Southland—to make your Lucky Strike a cigarette that is fully packed—round and firm—free from loose ends. That's why Luckies taste better, smoother.

REPEAL FINDS OHIO'S PROBLEM UNSETTLED

Roosevelt to Propose Central Bank to Supplant Federal Reserve

WASHINGTON—Critics of the President's monetary policy "ain't heard nuthin'."

His next move will really give them something to howl about—if they have any breath left after the shock. His surprise gold manipulation announcement will appear as a love tap in contrast to the jolt he is now preparing.

The proposal is of a dual nature: currency stabilization coupled with legislation to supplant the Federal Reserve system with a government controlled and operated central bank. It would be somewhat similar to the central banking systems of Europe.

Details of the plan are being worked out in strictest secrecy. Only a few of the innermost Presidential circle are in the know.

Present strategy is to spring the plan immediately upon the convening of Congress. By this strategy it is hoped to get the jump on both the extreme inflationists and the "second money" men, and jam the legislation through before they have had a chance to organize effective resistance.

Cuban Chaos

Behind the confused reports which come out of Cuba are two important factors which few people outside the State Department realize.

One is that American policy is battling to prevent a repetition of the tyranny of Dictator Machado. The other is that this policy has been placed on the spot by the British and other governments.

Contrary to the general impression, Ambassador Welles convinced Roosevelt 100 per cent regarding the wisdom of non-recognition. He said that President Grau had jailed 2,000 innocent political prisoners. Machado's maximum was 800. He asserted that five or six political killings per night was the average under Grau. When Machado killed one it was front page news.

He argued that ninety per cent of the Cuban people were bitterly opposed to Grau, that American recognition would saddle the Cuban people with a tyrant they could not get rid of. This was behind the ovation given Welles when he returned.

Meanwhile, however, the British have been moving to embrace American policy. Previous reports that the Irish Free State contemplated recognition were garbled. Canny Michael MacWhite, Irish Minister, went to the State Department with a warning that the British Foreign Office was sounding out the Dominions regarding recognition. It was a friendly tip to the U. S. A.

Meanwhile the Mexicans were busy toward the same end. Having already recognized Grau, they tried to get the Chileans and Brazilians to follow suit. The Brazilian Foreign Minister spoke to Secretary Hull about it when he passed through, enroute to Montevideo. But Hull stood pat.

So also did Roosevelt. He opposed a regime which out-machado Machado.

Ring Out Repeal

The closing hours of the Great American Dry Age saw some weird sights. They saw red-headed Dr. James M. Doran, Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol and one-time Czar of the enforcement forces, dedicating to become Czar of the Wet Forces. The versatile Doctor now becomes the Will Hays of the distilling industry at a salary three times what he has been getting in government service. Closing hours also saw everybody under the sun applying for permits to import liquor. Even Jimmy Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, was among those who wanted to import a consignment of Scotch. Closing hours also saw

GEN. MOSELEY LAUDS SCOUTS; COURT IS HELD

Splendid Talk Feature of Divisional Dinner; John Robinson Honored

RENICK PRESIDES

Many Scouts Receive Honor Court Awards

Probably the finest meeting of Boy Scouts, parents and scout officials ever held in Pickaway-co was attended by a large crowd at the Methodist Episcopal church, Monday evening. The occasion was the annual divisional dinner which was followed by an impressive Court of Honor.

During the evening John Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Robinson, was named an Eagle scout, the highest goal of any scout, by Tom A. Renick, the evening's toastmaster and Pickaway-co's first Eagle scout. William Weldon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Turney Weldon, received the honor three months ago. Both the new Eagle scouts are members of Troop 107, sponsored by the Kiwanis club.

ADDRESS FEATURE

While the Honor Court, in which many scouts received promotion and merit badges, was highly impressive the feature of the program was an address by Major General George Van Horn Moseley, commander of the Fifth corps area of the U. S. army with headquarters at Fort Hayes, Columbus.

Major General Moseley, dressed in his army uniform which he said he hoped would make some persons mistake him for a Boy Scout, opened his address by saying: "We should dedicate ourselves in the youth of this nation and trust in them to lead us through."

"I would divide the success of the Boy Scout movement into three parts; first, the overhead structure; second, community support, and third, the boys themselves. "You will observe," the speaker said, "that I have made no mention of finance because if the community spirit is a good one that will take care of itself. "I am sure the overhead structure is sufficient because I have had many contacts with the scout leaders, not only of Ohio but of other states, and I find them excellent, outstanding men. To get down to a more immediate overhead structure I will compare the scoutmaster to the army captain. In the army we look to the captain as the man responsible for the efficiency of our various companies, and in scouting it is natural that the scoutmaster take the place of the captain. It is necessary for the scoutmaster to conduct a varied program to retain and increase the interest of his scouts."

Major General Moseley cited the assistance the community can be expected to give to the scout troops and then placed much stress upon the parents and especially upon the burden of the mother. "Mothers," the speaker went on, "are always

Lowerys To Get 'Baby' Awards

Daughter Born Monday Is First of December; Merchants Give Prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Lowery, E. Mill-st. and their infant daughter, Rosie E. Lowery, will receive prizes of various Circleville merchants for "The First Baby of the Month."

The Lowery child was born at 6:40 p. m. Monday, December 4.

Announcement of the birth was made by Fred C. Clark, registrar. The certificate was filed by Dr. D. V. Courtrig. Gifts are awarded to the parents and baby by T. K. Brunner and Son, Mack's Shoe Store, Brehrer Greenhouses, The Mecca, Crist's Beauty Shoppe, Circle City Dairy, Crist Department Store, Mykanta Drug Store, Circleville Savings and Bank, Circleville Ice Co. and the Cliftona Theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oyer, Circleville-twp., announce the birth of a son late Monday night.

COUNCIL MEETS 3 UTILITIES

Lindberghs Seek Artificial Wave

Motorboats May Be Used to Make Waves to Permit Heavy-Laden Plane to Begin Atlantic Flight To Brazil; Flyer and Wife Delayed Two Full Days.

BATHURST, Gambia, British West Africa, Dec. 5.—Denied by nature, the choppy water surface necessary for the take-off of their heavily-loaded seaplane, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today considered providing it artificially.

Already held here for more than two full days after they first tried to start their 1,800-mile hop over the south Atlantic to Brazil, the Lindberghs sought some means of eliminating the glassy smoothness of the Gambia river, which, by suction on the pontoons, has kept the plane from taking the air.

With the tropical calm still prevailing, the Lindberghs were advised by local authorities of two measures which have been helpful in the past.

Some flyers have been able to get away on an otherwise calm surface by having motor boats speed around in circles to churn up the water, while others, with smaller planes, have themselves put artificial waves on the water by first taxiing their craft around in circles before trying the actual take-off.

Although the weather showed some improvement with a slight wind coming up, the Lindberghs made no attempt last night or this morning to get away on their trans-Atlantic flight. They spent two hours last night protecting their big monoplane from a heavy dew.

New Steel Mogul

William J. Filbert, who succeeds Myron C. Taylor as finance head of U. S. Steel Corporation, Taylor, while retaining his other posts with the corporation, will retire on January 1. Filbert at the time of his new appointment was vice-chairman of the finance committee.

FIREMEN TO REPAIR TOYS

Boy Scouts To Assist in Work; Paint, Tacks, Other Things Are Needed.

Members of the Circleville fire department have again consented to paint and repair discarded toys to be distributed to needy children of the city on the night before Christmas.

Firemen will be assisted by members of Boy Scout Troops 107 and 158.

Members of the fire department were somewhat reluctant about taking up the work this year because of difficulty they experienced in obtaining supplies, such as paint, wire, tacks, and other things a year ago. With the scouts promising to gather the toys for repair, and several interested persons ready to contribute paint and the other needed things, they decided to again do their part to make Christmas a success for the poor as well as those who would have a happy Christmas regardless.

So, you boys and girls who have tossed varied playthings into the clothes-dress, the play-room, the cellar and other places, gather them together and see that they get to the engine house. If you are unable to take the toys to the fire department telephone station, Boy Scouts will make regular visits to the fire house to learn if there are any errands they can do, so someone will be after your toys.

Remember, even though you have tossed your old toys aside some child may derive much good from them.

Do your part to make this a real Christmas.

GEPHART NAMED ON KIWANIS COMMITTEE

F. I. Gephart, high school principal, has received notice from Ben Arneson, Delaware, district governor of the Kiwanis club, that he has been appointed on the state Vocational Guidance committee.

NEEDY TO GET FOOD SUPPLY

304 Families Listed on Relief in Pickaway-Co.; State To Handle Goods.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5.—Distribution of approximately 5,141,000 pounds of salt pork, butter and flour to families on relief in the 88 counties of Ohio will start in about 10 days, W. R. McNamara, supervisor of commodity distribution for the state relief commission, said today.

The foodstuffs will be furnished by the Federal surplus relief corporations. Under the present schedule, 10 pounds of flour, 10 pounds of pork and four pounds of butter will be distributed to each family in need of relief during December.

Distribution will be carried on through local groceries selected by the relief administration. Official slips to be distributed by local relief agencies will authorize the transfer of the food. McNamara said that amounts of cheese and dried beans probably would be distributed later in the month.

82 CARS OF PORK The total food to be given out aggregates 82 cars of salt pork, 27 cars of butter, and 53 of flour.

Among the counties to share in the distribution, with the total number of families on relief rolls and the amounts of food in pounds to be distributed, are:

One six counties in the state, Wyandot, Wayne, Van Wert, Greene, Delaware and Auglaize, have fewer families on relief list than Pickaway.

Cuyahoga has the most, 42,782; Hamilton has 22,204; Lucas has 16,033 and Franklin, 12,917.

IAMS OFFICE KEPT BUSY BY REQUESTS

The National Reemployment office located in the City Building has been the busiest place since the war. William Iams, in charge, states there have been several hundred registrations since opening day. Nearly all Circleville employed have been in to register and the outlying townships can be taken care of at times from now on.

Mr. Iams suggests that ex-service men bring their discharge papers when applying for registration.

He wants it made clear that persons now working are not eligible for registrations, and does not approve of persons now working on farms to leave the farmer and come to the Reemployment office and register with the expectation of getting jobs through the Employment office, of which it neither guarantees nor promises.

This is getting to be a serious question with the farmer.

Local Committee to Enforce Oil Code

G. I. Nickerson, this city, received word Tuesday that local committees have power to administer the oil codes. The notification was sent by Ed. Reicher, Columbus, state administrator of the oil code.

Council Buys Plans to Landscape Hospital Grounds

CITIZENS ACTIVE

Need of Work on Creek Stressed by Group

Approval of two Civil Works administration projects for this city was expected this afternoon after plans had been presented to G. J. Kane, chief Civil Works engineer. If approved, workmen will be assigned to the jobs Wednesday or Thursday.

One is the landscape project at Berger hospital. Mayor B. T. Hedges called city council into special session Monday night and under suspension of rules, an ordinance was passed to appropriate $165 to purchase a plan drawn by G. L. Lynch, Columbus engineer.

The drawing is a very complete one officials believe well worth the money paid for it.

TO STRAIGHTEN CREEK

The other project is straightening and cleaning Hargus creek through the city to eliminate the flood danger which now prevails. This project is being supported especially by residents of N. Court-st who have formed an association in an effort to eliminate the danger of this quick-rising stream. H. W. Plum is president of the association. Homer Fullen is secretary and W. E. Crist is treasurer.

As it now winds through the edge of the city Hargus creek provides a constant menace. Many recall the hazards of several years ago when nearly every house in that section of town was filled with water which had left the banks of the creek. Not only does the water menace the houses and health of the neighborhood

PRES. ROOSEVELT, JOHNSON, NRA HIT

Pamphlet Charges Effort To 'Muzzle' Press; Dictatorship Alleged.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Indications that the convening of the Congress next month may signalize a rift in the executive-legislative "honeymoon" were multiplied today as the Republican National committee took off the gloves to strike at the President, the NRA in general and blunt-spoken Gen. Hugh S. Johnson in particular.

In its latest attack, a sequel to that intimated a few weeks ago, the official Republican silence during pre-election days, the G. O. P. issued a pamphlet charging the administration with attempting to set up a dictatorship through muzzling the press and warding off of adverse criticism.

Gibing at the administration, the latest broadside bears no title on its cover page. Instead, it quotes "epithets from utterances by administration leaders, crediting them to the president, Gen. Johnson, Speaker Rainey and Donald R. Richberg, NRA counsel. The caption reads: "Tories—chiselers—dead cats—witch doctors—bank wreckers—traitors!"

HOSPITAL NEWS

Frank Littleton, W. Main-st., was admitted to Berger hospital, Tuesday morning.

Charles Helvering, R. F. D. 4, was returned to his home Tuesday from Berger hospital where he recently underwent a major operation.

S. T. Rife, who underwent a gastric operation at Berger hospital, is reported improving.

MISS NYE IS CALLED

Miss Eudora Nye, descendant of one of Chillicothe's early families, and well known in this city, died of complications Monday afternoon. She had been in failing health for a year.

Mrs. Fannie Moore, W. Mount-st., is a distant relative.

Committee Meeting Called This Evening to Hear Water Company

TALK LOCAL RATES

Electric, Gas Are in Regular Session

Within the next 30 hours city council will have met with and discussed rates with officials of three of its four major utility companies, if present expectations hold true.

Called into special meeting Monday evening by Mayor B. T. Hedges to purchase plans for landscaping the Berger hospital grounds, councilmen will again be in session this evening with officials of the Ohio Water Service Co. to be present. The meeting tonight will be a committee session and not open to the public.

2 APPEAR WEDNESDAY

Wednesday evening officials of both electric and gas companies are expected to make their appearance in regular council session. It is understood that action will be taken on ordinances of both companies. The Southern Ohio Electric Co.'s ordinance will embody street-lighting alone since its domestic schedule holds until 1936.

Appearance of both electric and gas company officials will follow committee conferences of the past few weeks.

The water negotiations will be the first for a long while. W. A. Dark, executive of the company, is expected to be here this evening to accompany Harry Denman, local superintendent, to the council chamber.

Holiday Decoration At Corner Planned

Chamber of Commerce directors, in session Monday, voted to sponsor Christmas decorations at Court and Main-sts and named Charles T. Gilmore as chairman of a committee to see that the work is done.

Harry Steinhauser and Mack Mader were appointed to solicit funds.

For the past several years this decoration has added much to the Christmas spirit.

CONVENTION VOTES PROHIBITION ADIEU

Brief Statement Made by Governor White in Opening State Session; Utah to Cast Official Vote Late Today; Legislature Called Wednesday to Be Important Session.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5.—Confining his remarks to a brief statement of the purpose for which the delegates had assembled, Gov. George White this afternoon opened the constitutional convention which will cast Ohio's vote for the repeal of national prohibition.

In his terse message the governor stated that the control of intoxicating liquors presents a problem of first magnitude, but added that the solution does not concern the repeal convention.

"You are concerned only with the question of whether the method of control embodied in the Eighteenth Amendment shall be continued or abolished," the governor told the delegates.

"But if, and when that method shall be abolished and you as citizens shall take your places once again in the ranks of your communities, the effort of the state to cope with this important responsibility should elicit your earnest consideration."

NAMED BY VOTERS

"In the selection of delegates to this convention, the vote of every citizen counted equally with that of every other. Every voter in Ohio had the opportunity, to express his choice, and a high percentage of the electorate, availed itself of this opportunity. You, therefore, bear the mandate of the people to register the will of the state upon the question to come before you."

All delegates to the constitutional convention were elected as "wets" when Ohio rejected prohibi-

STATES FACE HUGE TASKS

Liquor Returns Before Many Municipalities Are Prepared For It.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—National prohibition—one of the costliest experiments in which the government ever engaged—glided to its death today while federal and state officials grappled with manifold problems connected with its passing.

By nightfall it will be legally possible to purchase liquor, by the drink or by the bottle, in almost half of the states of the union.

Repeal, the thing that smart politicians predicted could not be accomplished for a dozen years, has actually been accomplished in less than that many months. It constitutes an amazing chapter in American history, which is studied with amazing chapters.

UTAH THIRTY-SIXTH

To Utah, long a dry state, falls the distinction of giving the 18th amendment its fatal knife thrust. After Pennsylvania and Ohio have delivered their blows this afternoon, the Utah repeal delegates will meet in Salt Lake City and ratify the adoption of the 21st amendment to the constitution. That will constitute the final act in the 14-year-old drama of the experiment that failed. It is the only act needed to restore legal liquor to more than half the 130,000,000 people in the United States.

A period of considerable confusion inevitably will follow the repeal of the 18th amendment. Repeal has been so rapid that it has caught some of the states, as well as the federal government, in a state of unpreparedness for what is to follow. Congress is not in session and will not be for another month, to determine the important questions of taxation and tariffs, upon which depend the price of liquor to the consumer as well as balancing of the federal budget.

RUSH POLICE TO HALT OHIO CROWD

DAYTON, Dec. 5.—A squad of 15 policemen was rushed to the federal, state and city re-employment bureau offices here today when 5,000 job-seekers stormed the building in quest of the 200 jobs which were to be distributed during the day.

Although the disturbance assumed the semblance of a riot, no one was injured. Swinging police clubs quickly restored order and the line of applicants was re-formed.

A door was broken down and a railing at the entrance of the office was demolished in the melee.

60,000 Refugees Flee Germany, Expert Says

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Dec. 5.—Sixty thousand refugees, of whom 51,000 were Jews, have fled from Germany since Adolf Hitler ascended to power, James G. McDonald, American acting as high commissioner of the World Committee for the Relief of German refugees, told the governing body of the organization as it convened today.

Delegates from nine of the 12 countries represented on the commission were present at the meeting, the first it has held. McDonald's address outlined the group in its work, which will be carried out under the League of Nations.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

Dec. 5.—It will be the first evening before the Utah constitutional convention, after elaborate ceremonies, making this the first legal drinking in the United States after thirteen years of national prohibition.

The 21 delegates to the convention, as well as state officials, today were determined that Utah shall be the first state to repeal the twenty-first amendment that will end prohibition.

"We will make certain that no other state shall take this glory away from Utah," asserted Franklin D. Rowley, president of the Utah League for Prohibition Repeal, in outlining elaborate plans for this historic session here.

bition by an 850,000 majority on Nov. 7. There will be 52 delegates, two of whom must be elected after the convention meets to fill vacancies caused by death.

Telegraph instruments have been installed on the speakers' rostrum in the House, so that as the delegates are polled the result can be flashed to the secretary of state in Washington.

Ohio's state prohibition law will not expire until Dec. 7, when the constitutional 30-day period after the election will have elapsed. Even then two strict enforcement laws not automatically repealed will hold back the tide of legal liquor until repealed by a special session of the legislature convened here tomorrow.

Because of the limited seating capacity of the House galleries and the great demand from persons who wish to hear Ohio sound prohibition's death knell, the entire proceedings will be broadcast over several radio stations.

PLANS DIFFERENT

Two radically divergent liquor control policies will be re-presented on the convention platform, one by Governor White, who emphatically favors sale of liquor by the glass, and the other by U. S. Sen. Robert J. Bulkley who contends such procedure would be parallel to a return of the saloons.

Senator Bulkley was slated to be permanent chairman of the repeal convention. He came here from Cleveland where he had just finished delivering a spirited attack on sale of liquor by the glass in licensed hotels, clubs and restaurants, a proposal included in the administration's liquor control bill.

But since the convention will concern itself with only one issue: "Shall the Eighteenth Amendment be continued or abolished?"

Tigers To Meet Academy Team Here On Friday

Circleville high school Tigers are preparing for their opening basketball game for the season, Friday evening, when Columbus Academy, coached by Bill Hunt, former Ohio State cager, invades the local court.

Coach Pete Herberholz, of the local school, has not announced his starting lineup and probably will not be ready to do so until game time. He has been working with several combinations and in his squad of more than 30 aspirants he expected to be able to name a winning group.

With girls' interscholastic games dispensed with because other schools have abandoned the sport the local school will carry a reserve boys' team through the season. The reserves will play on Friday.

The Columbus Academy team is a fast one and will test the Tiger cagers to their fullest extent. Bill Hunt was a member of the renowned team made famous by Johnny Minner, Cookie Cunningham and others and is passing his knowledge of the cage game to the students at the Columbus school.

No positive headway has been made toward obtaining the Circleville Athletic club gymnasium for the school's game. It is expected something definite, one way or another, will be learned this week although, probably, not in time for the Friday game.

WARNER OPPOSES COLUMBIA CHOICE

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Pop Warner, coach of Temple university, has cast the lone dissenting vote today among eastern coaches on the selection of Columbia for the Rose Bowl game.

Said Warner: "I do not see where Columbia should be selected. I believe Stanford will be too much for them. Pitt has a much better record. Michigan would be a good representative. Next to Pitt I would book Nebraska and then Alabama. Fordham had the most power and ruggedness but, of course, was beaten by two coast

Said Rip Miller, Navy coach: "Columbia gave us more trouble either Army or Princeton, and I believe that at present it is the best team in the east with the possible exception of Fordham. Columbia's only weakness is a lack of reserves but it has a seasoned team that should be able to hold on through the game. It has a skillful line and a real sparkplug in Cliff Montgomery."

Said Fritz Crisler, Princeton coach: "I want to congratulate Columbia and wish them success. I hope they meet with good weather, which is the main problem, from the cold of the east to the warmth of California is hard to hope Columbia has success with the obstacles."

"NOT LONESOME!"

CLEVELAND—"This place is O. K.?" said 186 Civilian Conservation Corps youths when they pitched camp at Euclid, a suburb, about ten miles from downtown Cleveland.

"Here we are away out in the woods, with all the advantages of camp life, and just around the corner is a street car line into Cleveland," one of them said.

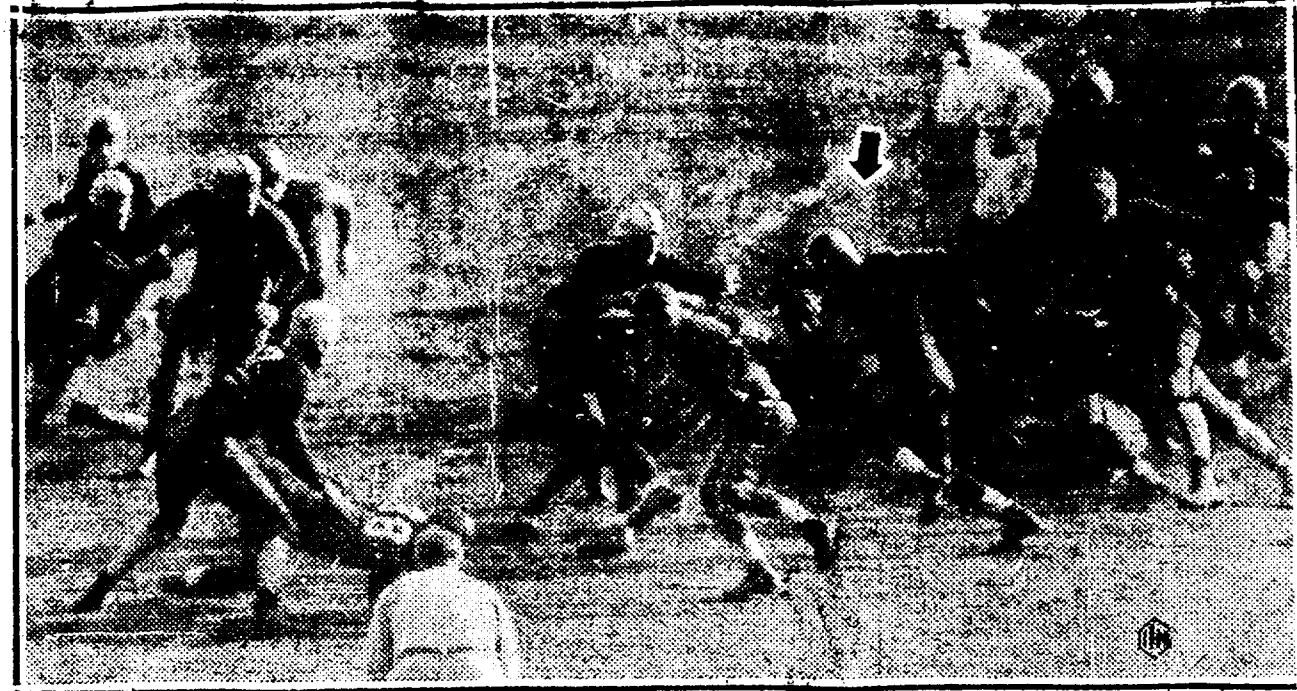

"Nobody's going to get lonesome out here."

Most of the youthful workmen were sent here from western Ohio camps. They will spend the next six months developing and beautifying the famous Metropolitan Park system here.

Name Columbia To Visit Coast

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It will be Columbia, the gem of the Atlantic, vs. Stanford, the pride of the Pacific, in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

This classic of the roses was assured today after Columbia had accepted the invitation to visit California and Lou Little, coach of the light blue and white, again called his squad into action. The Lions will leave here Dec. 19 and return Jan. 5.

And so, for the first time in history, California will see a truly representative New York team in action, and for the first time, too, the entire eastern seaboard will be united in rooting for the visiting team.

For the east, and particularly New York, and more particularly still, Broadway, holds a warm spot in its heart for Columbia. There are many reasons for this affection. Columbia, one of the oldest colleges in the country, was founded in 1754 and through all the succeeding generations it has kept its place in the front rank of educational institutions.

Around the turn of the century Columbia had some great football teams. Then the lid was clamped down and for many years, until 1915, Columbia was without a team, and for several years ranked only with such minor colleges as Amherst, Middlebury and Williams. In fact, there were years when little Williams had no trouble in trimming Columbia.

THEN CAME LITTLE But with the advent of big Lou Little a few years ago there came a surprising change. The former all-American Penn tackle, who had worked wonders at Georgetown, came to the big town and at once proceeded to demonstrate that he could take almost any kind of material and develop it into a real team.

Soon his light-weighted teams began to bowl over major opponents. They reached their peak this season when they went through the season with only one defeat and that one chalked up against the overconfident Lions by the unbeaten and untied Princeton Tigers. However, many good judges believe that were the two teams to play today the score of that game would be reversed.

Columbia may lose to Stanford but not before California has seen a team that fights to the last bell. A submarine line that charges like a cavalry squadron and a backfield that can and will produce more trick stuff than any other team in the country.

Moreover, there is no smarter team to be found anywhere. All Lou Little's teams are smart but this one is tops in that respect.

SIX TO GRADUATE

Six of the regulars, led by Captain Cliff Montgomery, who is rated second only to Southern California's Cotton Warburton, are veterans who will play their last college game New Year's Day. One of them, Red Matal, is without doubt an all-American end, who is so fierce in his reckless, Devil-may-care onslaught that a powerful Syracuse team wound up with a net loss of 30 yards trying to circle his end.

Yes, with the eyes of the nation upon them, Columbia will give Stanford the battle of its life, and if Columbia loses, it probably will be when the weight of Stanford reserves wear down Lou Little's small fighting band of regulars.

District of Columbia

The District of Columbia, which includes the city of Washington, is not in any state but is a federal district, whose residents are without representation in congress. It was cut out of the state of Maryland.

CONVERSATION IN A CLOTHES CLOSET

FIRST COAT-HANGER: "I wish the boss would get a new overcoat—I've been holding this one for him a terrible long time."

FOR TWO, three years you've been saying, "This overcoat's in fair shape—guess it'll do another winter," or "I think I can get along without buying a new suit."

And probably you COULD still make them do a while longer... but SHOULD you? Isn't this the time to give your clothes a "new deal"? Is there any real economy in looking shabby?

Certainly, so far as price is concerned, you couldn't choose a better moment. FOR CLOTHING PRICES TODAY ARE LOWER THAN THEY ARE LIKELY TO BE AGAIN!

In the past four years everything in the clothing industry has been topsy-turvy. Because people were making their old clothes do, retailers couldn't sell their stocks. Because retailers couldn't sell, they couldn't buy from the manufacturer. Because the manufacturer had no orders, he had to stop buying cloth. Because the cloth makers had no business, they stopped buying yarn. Because the yarn spinners were idle, they stopped buying wool.

All along the line wages were cut, labor was laid off, and the worth of a man's head or hands kept shrinking away. It was a situation in which neither a human being nor his handiwork had any true value any more.

While you have this paper in your hand, look over the advertisements for overcoat and suit bargains that are still to be had. Then act now to take advantage of present favorable prices.

SECOND COAT-HANGER: "Say, you're lucky—I've been hanging here without holding ANYTHING for almost four years!"

Now the tide has turned. Under the terms of the NRA code a worker HAS to receive a fair living wage. The Government has set out to make everything... both a man's time and the product of his labor... WORTH SOMETHING AGAIN.

Wool... yarn... cloth... clothing... all are necessary to cover our nakedness, and all need human labor to produce. THEREFORE THE FINAL COST OF THE FINISHED PRODUCT IS BOUND TO GO UP.

This process is now under way. Since February pay rolls in the clothing industry have increased 32½%. Wool has gone up 49%. Cotton goods are up 90%. Other materials have kept pace. But NOW... today... there are still winter stocks to be had at amazingly low prices... real bargains for keen buyers. Only remember this—such opportunities are limited. NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

All Ready For Music-Comic

The committee reports that the last and choruses and group numbers, in fact, everything is in readiness for the big production, "The World's All Right" which is to be staged Wednesday and Thursday nights, December 6 and 7, in the Grand Opera House.

The scene is laid in the broadcasting studio of W-A-R, whose initials stand for "World's All Right."

The plot revolves around the leading character, Jimmy Waddell. This part is played by Charles Kirkpatrick. He and his sweethearts, Jane, Mary Mae Haswell, his secretary, are trying to keep the oil collectors away and the program going so that they may sell some advertising on their station before it is placed in the hands of the receivers. They hope to get Mr. Dinkell of Dinkell Pickles, Inc., played by Earl Hoffman, to buy an hour for $10,000.

THEN COMES JOE

Everything is set for a big program when things start happening. The talent quits. A bill collector hounds them for past-due bills and threatens to turn off the electric current. The bill collector's part is played by George Griffith. All the time this excitement is going on, Jimmy and Jane fill in with impromptu impersonations and song and dance numbers to keep the program going.

When things look the worst, the comedy lead, Joe, the fellow boy, played by Gladden Troutman, comes in to rehearse his act. The current in the studio is turned on and he actually broadcasts his number to the world. It is a sensational success. Thousands of telegrams flow in. Mr. Dinkell not only buys the program for $10,000 but pays $27,500 in order to get it away from his competitors. Of course, this means they do not have to close the station.

Joe is made vice president of the company and gets his first square meal in three weeks. Woven through this plot are spectacular musical scenes, group numbers and solo parts of the show. The show is unique because, instead of the audience listening to a program through a radio where they cannot see the talent perform, "The World's All Right" brings the entertainers right before their eyes.

The next big group number is the Sunshine Chorus. This has a big chorus from the High School Glee club, and two girls' choruses in colorful costumes doing clever routines to the numbers "Whistle and Blow Your Blues Away," and "Smile In the Morning and Smile in the Night."

A novelty quartette number using an arrangement of the famous old railroad ditty, "Casey Jones," "Oh Mammie Riley," and "They Kept the Pig in the Parlor," is an outstanding feature.

Next the hill-billies give "My Blue Ridge Mountain Home" and "They Cut Down the Old Pine Tree." In this number we have an oldtime square dance with a fiddler and guitar player and a special comedy feature entitled, "Frankie and Johnnie" in which the old time melodrama is pantomimed. This pantomime is one of the high spots of comedy in the production and is pantomimed by some of the best actors in the community.

In direct contrast to this number we find Wendell Boyer appearing as Skipper Ericson. He will give a special interpretation of that dramatic number, "I'm Waiting for Ships That Never Come In." He will be assisted by eight girls dressed in sailor costumes.

Including all types of music in this big broadcast, it would of course, be incomplete without a bit of sacred music. So the next number on the varied program is by the Vested Choir. This number is very majestic and inspiring.

The county commissioners look favorably upon both projects and it is hoped Engineer Kane will also cast a favorable eye in the direction of the two jobs.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5.—Aided by the hearty co-operation of Governor George White and the heads of all state departments, the State Civil Works Administration today had its ultimate goal—that of placing Ohio's unemployed on jobs for the winter.

RELIEF IS SLASHED

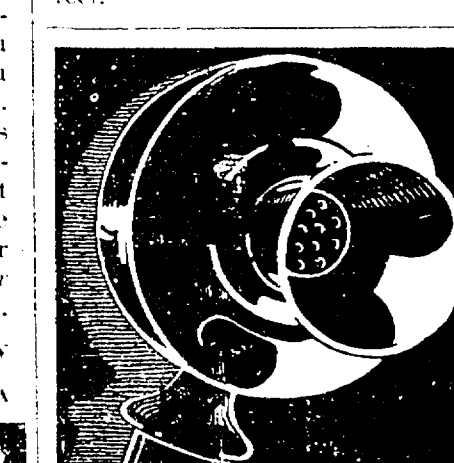

Approximately 124,000 heads of families throughout the state are at work on federal, state and municipal civil works projects, according to information reaching Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, chairman of the state civil works and relief commissions. Of this number, it was estimated that 110,000 had been taken from relief rolls and assigned to jobs and 14,000 were men who had been idle but not on the relief rolls.

Instructions were issued by Major E. O. Braught, executive director, to the county civil works administrators to make every effort to assign all unemployed workers available under existing quotas to work by next Wednesday. If this is accomplished, a total of 165,000 unemployed workers will have been assigned to jobs on civil works projects in the Buckeye state by December 6.

Upon being informed that all existing quotas have been exhausted, Braught will apply to the proper federal authorities at Washington, D. C., for permission to put an additional 55,000 Ohio unemployed men to work, or a total of 220,000 by December 15.

Announcement by Nickola Tesla, celebrated American inventor and physicist, that he has developed a device to harness and utilize cosmic energy opens a wonderful field of possibilities and promises to revolutionize the world's industry. The new power, derived from cosmic rays emanating from the sun, could be used to operate ships, trains, factories and airplanes or anything else driven by machinery—and all without the use of coal, oil, gas or other established fuel. The energy could be transmitted by wireless from a central plant to any spot on the globe, at sea or in the air. Thus a plane could fly, a ship could sail, autos and trains run without refueling just as long as they held together.

QUIET PREVAILS IN LOUISIANA VOTING

HAMMOND, La., Dec. 5.—An ominous quiet hung over the sixth Congressional district today as forces opposing and supporting Senator Huey P. Long awaited developments following opening of the polls in a special congressional election fraught with possibilities of violence and bloodshed.

There was an air of tenseness over the 12 parishes of the district as armed citizens and some 300 specially-appointed deputies prepared to enforce court injunctions against the election.

"Stay away from the polls" was the watchword on the lips of thousands of men following further ballot-burning and gunfire last night as a result of a rising tide of indignation against the "Kingfish" and Governor O. Major General Moseley concluded by saying: "All scouts should keep their minds on their objectives with the Eagle Scout rank as their ideal."

Previous to General Moseley's address, C. E. Shriner, scout commissioner, outlined the 10-year program of scouting and the desire of the national organization to develop four-year scouts.

The meeting opened at 6:30 p. m. with the bugler blowing assembly after which the colors were paraded by members of Troop 107. The Pledge to the Flag was led by Scout Horace Gilmore with invocation following by Rev. W. A. Moore, of Williamsport.

During the dinner served by ladies of the M. E. church a group of high school pupils provided music with Troops 158 and 107 conducting activities on the stage. 3 about Cigarettes

Not so long ago practically all cigarettes were made by hand

Now, Chesterfields are made by high-speed machines that turn out 750 cigarettes a minute, and the cigarettes are practically not touched by hand.

BY the use of long steel ovens—drying machines of the most modern type—and by aging the leaf tobacco for 30 months—like wine is aged—Chesterfield tobacco is milder and tastes better.

Only pure cigarette paper—the best made—is used for Chesterfield.

And to make sure that everything that goes into Chesterfield is just right, expert chemists test all materials that are used in any way in the manufacture. Chesterfields are made and packed in clean, up-to-date factories, where the air is changed every 4½ minutes. The moisture-proof package, wrapped in Du Pont's No. 300 Cellophane—the best made—reaches you just as if you went by the factory door.

In a letter to us, an eminent scientist says: "Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink."

by Mr. Dunlap last summer with Troop 158.

Recognition of the Silver Beaver was given when R. L. Bremer, the county's only silver beaver, was called to stand. Scoutmasters and assistants were also called to stand by the toastmaster and Dr. E. J. Lilly, introduced as a man interested in scouting for many years, was given a big hand when introduced by Mr. Renick.

The Eagle award was made to John Robinson at this time.

Edward C. Ebert Jr., of Troop 158, a 12-year-old scout, and William Weldon, of Troop 107, a four-year scout, made two-minute talks after which Mr. Shriner heard Ray W. Davis explained Pickaway-co's part in the 10-year program.

Reed Shafer presented four youths with second class certificates and Glen Gelb gave first class certificates to five Scouts. Ludwig Haecker explained the achievement round-up and E. J. Geppert issued an invitation to attend the scouts' convention in Columbus on Feb. 8 at the Southern Hotel.

Howard Stevenson presented merit badges to 14 scouts after which Mr. Bremer announced that Ross Kirkpatrick had accepted the appointment as division chairman for 1934. Mr. Kirkpatrick, father of Charles Kirkpatrick, scoutmaster of Troop 107, responded with a short talk. The entire list of 1934 officers will be announced later.

At the conclusion of General Moseley's address the Scout Oath was led by Eagle Scout John Robinson and taps sounded by the bugler closed the meeting.

Other scout executives here besides Mr. Shriner include Kenneth Connelly and Dale M. Reed.

Both voiced the hope that the convention speeches would be held short so that the vote for ratification of the Twenty-first Amendment to the federal constitution could be recorded early in the afternoon.

Secretary of State George S. Myers will call the roll of delegates. The convention, after nam-

Treasury Has Charge

THE treasury department seems to have the upper hand in the president's gold buying and financial policy at Washington and the power of the federal reserve board over money matters is rapidly declining. The treasury officials are gradually taking over the dominant position.

It is no secret that officials of the federal reserve lack sympathy with the president's plan and their advice is asked more as a matter of technique and courtesy. At the same time, the New York Federal reserve bank has carried out the government orders on gold purchases without protest.

It appears that the federal reserve is slated to become merely the complaisant assistant of the treasury and no longer will have the high place in matters of currency.

An instance occurred within the last few days which showed that the federal reserve board is subservient to others. The October monthly bulletin issued by the federal reserve contained business figures, which tended to show that recovery had not progressed nearly so far as figures issued by other departments of the government made it appear.

General Johnson, head of the NRA was one of the protesters. The next issue of the bulletin contained no figures and the officials defended themselves merely with publishing President Roosevelt's address given to the nation at the time he announced the gold purchase plan.

You find bulls, bears and lambs in Wall Street. But no elephants. Elephants have long memories.

A Press Muzzler

THE fight for a free press is never won. Thin-skinned politicians, resentful of publicity directed at their acts, are forever yearning for a muzzled press. Which is exactly the reason why the freedom of the press clause was inserted in the constitution as well as the reason why it will never be taken out.

The latest convert to the press-muzzlers is Rep. William T. Schulte, Democrat of the First Indiana district. The Hon. Schulte predicted in a speech in Gary that legislation muzzling the press would be passed by that next congress. "And," added Hon. Schulte, "it needs muzzling."

When congress was granted the right to amend the constitution the Indiana politician didn't bother to explain. However, Indiana newspapers should scrutinize the career of this bird close-ly. The phrase, "vigilance of the press," was invented for political specimens of this sort who, too often, find their way into public office.

Just imagine what those white house tea cups might tell if they could talk.

"Night and Day"

Apparently Rita Gentry Bishop, 19-year-old Chicagoan, has a keen sense of humor, for she can laugh although she is charged with bigamy. Rita is alleged, married a window trimmer, who worked days, in September and eloped with a cafe proprietor, who works nights, in November. The latter brought the charge.

A Tough Season

THAT'S MY BOY!
by FRANCIS WALLACE
AUTHOR OF "HUDDLE"

CHAPTER FORTY-NINE

Other people were going in when they got to the Bijou and everybody wanted to stop and talk to him. But Pop just kept going on like an Indian. Mom had given him a dollar before they left the house and he walked right up to the window and laid it down like he was going to the opera house in New York. But George Kauffman was there and he smiled and said to Pop:

"Your money is no good here tonight, Mr. Randolph."

Mom saw that eye go down and she was deathly afraid Pop was going to bawl George Kauffman out right there because there was no telling what he would say or do when he was like this; but George said:

"Tommy's folks are guests of the house tonight—I'll take you down to your reserved seats myself." And here George had a dress suit on.

Pop smiled, just a bit, but he didn't even say thank you and Mom had to go so fast to keep up with him that she hardly got a look at the pictures of Tommy outside.

Inside they were going down the aisle following George Kauffman. The lights were still on and the place was almost filled up and when everybody saw them coming they started to clap. It was all Mom could do to keep from crying right out loud; but Pop just took her arm and squeezed it tight and he was so gracie that Mom felt like a great lady herself and they went down the aisle as though nothing had happened. Mom had never been so proud of Pop. She thought Coolidge himself couldn't have done it better.

Then Mom got mad. There was Cousin Emmy standing up, waving her skinny arms for Mom to come where she was, letting everybody know that she was one of the family; too; and Mom pretended not to see her making a show of herself and would have gone somewhere else; but that was right where George Kauffman took them to their reserved seats.

And there, on one side of her was Pop and the other side of her was the Mayor; and just in front of her was Charlie Whitney, and with him was the Superintendent of Schools, R. K. Washburn.

And the Mayor shook hands with her and Pop, and so did Charlie Whitney, looking right into her eyes, he did, like he had never done before; and Mom could see he had the same pretty blue eyes he did when he was a boy; and somehow Charlie looked so pleased you would have thought Tommy was his boy.

And everybody was cheering and Mom felt like it was in a dream and she wished Tommy could be there; it was so wonderful, except that Cousin Emmy was still standing up, smiling to Mom, showing her teeth, and waving her skinny arms, still wearing the flowered chiffon. Even then Mom almost had to laugh at the way Pop looked it, hardly a smile except way back in his eyes. He sure carried it off.

Mom's greatest movie thrill—Once her boy looked right at her from the screen while he was supposed to be kissing the glamorous Valeska Mourat!

loosen his shoes; she prayed he wouldn't take them clear off because his feet would be sure to be swollen—and wouldn't it be a nice howdy-do to end the evening with him not able to get his shoes back on?

Then Mom forgot Pop's feet. In the darkness, where nobody could see, she was crying.

Then she had to laugh again; for Pop was nudging her. He was winking at her, the devil. Just like when they were married, while he was putting the ring on her finger.

The program opened up with a "Mickey Mouse" and Mom smiled; because the mouse got the best of the cat, and Butcher Brown would be sure to say tomorrow that he wouldn't have done that to Albert. Then there was a newswall and a lot of advertisements and Pop got fidgety waiting through it all and started to look up where the man was showing the pictures. Mom had a mad look on him and Mom had to mudge him to make him turn around and be patient—although she could hardly wait herself; but Pop might even say something out loud which would have spoiled everything since George Kauffman had been so nice about having the Mayor and R. K. Washburn and Charlie Whitney in reserved seats.

Just for a minute Mom thought it was too bad the old grandmother wasn't there, too, right down front where she could see what kind of people the Serogians were now.

Then, without any notice another picture jumped right out on the screen and . . . there was her Tommy!

There was little clasp for Mom that night, just canyons and do-

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA IS CURABLE

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

DURING THE past decade numerous important discoveries have been made in the medical world. Little was known about certain ailments before and many were considered incurable.

Dr. Copeland

The first ray of hope offered to victims of this disorder was the discovery that liver was beneficial in the treatment of simple anemia. Following this important discovery came the announcement that a liver diet would cure pernicious anemia, too, providing the disease was recognized in its early stages and the treatment given over a prolonged period.

Liver Extract Is Beneficial

As a result of continued investigation, a liver extract was developed. This is given to the sufferer in the form of hypodermic injection. Its beneficial action is more rapid and more permanent than when liver is given in the diet. Of course, liver and powdered liver extracts have their place in the treatment of pernicious anemia and their value should not be overlooked.

I am often asked to recite the symptoms of pernicious anemia. The symptoms vary. The sufferer may complain simply of headache and listlessness, or he may have shortness of breath, swelling of the feet, nausea, indigestion, diarrhea or other more serious complaints.

Dear in mind that anemia is a disturbance of the blood. It is characterized by a marked reduction in the number of red cells in the blood stream and a lessening of the quantity of hemoglobin, the coloring matter of the blood. It is only by means of a blood count that the diagnosis can be made.

Value of Blood Test

The blood test reveals the number of red and white blood corpuscles and the hemoglobin content. It furnishes important information from the shape and size of the red blood corpuscles. In this way an accurate diagnosis can be made.

Do not confuse pernicious anemia with other forms of anemia which may result from great loss of blood, as in an accident or from operation. They are also encountered in severe infectious diseases, in undernourishment, and in other disturbances of the body. These types of anemia differ from pernicious anemia and require different treatment.

The MONTHS IN HISTORY

by M. McM Jones
DECEMBER

The last month of the year. In the Roman calendar the year was divided into ten months, the last of which was called December or tenth and this name was retained when the calendar was altered. The number of days given to December varied but was finally settled at thirty one.

The Saxons called it winter-monat or winter month, and heligh-monat or Holy month from the fact that Christmas fell on the twenty-fifth day of the month. Dec. 22 is the winter Solstice, when days are short and nights are long.

"The poetry of earth is ceasing never: On a lone winter evening when the frost Has wrought a silence, from the store there shrills The cricket's song in warmth increasing ever And seems to one, in drowsiness half lost, The grasshopper's among some grassy hills." —John Keats

The births one for December is the turquois, the flower is the Holly. Trees are bare, migratory birds have gone to their winter homes in the South.

"The north wind doth blow and we shall have snow" not so much however as there was in days gone by, when sleds were in evidence. An old couplet runs "The snow doesn't choose to come down like it useter."

Can any one remember when there was enough snow in this locality to make a fort or snow man? Those now-a-days who love winter sports are forced to go to Canada.

However occasionally Jack Frost makes pictures on the window pane. Brooks are frozen over, not often enough to skate on. Does any one remember when there was enough snow to make good sleighing? When the sportsmen who owned fast horses and sleighs with sleighbells raced up and down Main-st. from the Canal to Mingo? Automobiles are insignificant in comparison.

December gave us three presidents Martin Van Buren, 1837; Andrew Johnson 1865; Woodrow Wilson 1897. George Washington, our beloved first president, died Dec. 31 1799, the last day of the last month of the century.

A number of noted people claim December as their birth month. Joel Chandler Harris, of "Uncle Remus" fame, 1848; The Appleton publishers, 1785; Arthur Brisbane, newspaper man, 1864; Bishop Phillips Brooks, beloved divine, 1835; E. A. Robinson, poet, 1869; Joseph Smith, Mormon leader, 1805; Kit Carson, scout and pioneer, 1809; Adlai Stevenson, Dewey 1857; Albert Smith, politician and editor, 1873; Jefferson Davis, president of confederacy, 1808.

Among notable events in this month we find Boston Tea party, 1773; The ratification of the 18th amendment to the constitution, abolition of slavery and involuntary servitude. First in importance perhaps was the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, 1620; Gas was first used for lighting, 1816; Monroe Doctrine sent to Congress, 1823, defending American territory from foreign aggression.

Wireless telegraph across Atlantic, 1901; First airplane flight, 1903; George Washington delivered his farewell address to his officers, 1783; Indiana became a state, 1816; Iowa admitted to Union, 1846; Texas admitted to Union, 1845.

The most important event in the month is Christmas celebrated on the 25th. This celebration has come down to us from the ages. As time goes by we forget the significance of the celebration, the birth of the meek and lowly Christ child born in a manger, and pay too much attention to the German idea of glitzy and feasting.

Cites Destruction of Highway Markers

COLUMBUS—Pointing out that the destruction or mutilation of state highway markers might lead to auto accidents and deaths, Harry E. Neal, traffic engineer of the state highway department has issued a warning that vandals would be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The warning was issued following a recent increase in the amount of highway equipment stolen or willfully defaced by vandals.

There are two ways to lighten the pressing burden of debts. Some people wait for an act of Congress and some just change grocers.

Coming to The Cliftona Theatre

"Beauty for Sale," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature which opens Wednesday at the Cliftona Theatre, is a daring picture of the sensational Faith Baldwin novel, "Beauty." It is a drama of modern city life, with a particularly intimate locale behind the scenes in a fashionable beauty salon. The story, which runs serially in Cosmopolitan Magazine, was one of the most popular of the past season.

Heading an impressive cast are Madge Evans, Alice Brady, Otto Kruger, Una Merkel, May Robson and Phillips Holmes.

a mad rush on the part of the whiskey ring to hire lobbyists and high-powered executives . . . One of those snatched up in the rush was George Christian, secretary of the late President Harding, recently holding down a soft berth in the Shipping Board. George had his salary reduced $2,000 by the New Deal, had been told he would be eased out soon. He will now work for a distilling firm.

The distillers are going to need Doc Doran, George Christian and more big guns . . . Unlike Son James, Franklin Roosevelt is a hardboiled believer in strictest government liquor control . . . And behind the distillers' codes was one of the biggest knock-down and drag-out battles of the Administration. Professor Tugwell and Secretary Wallace first proposed a complete government monopoly of liquor . . . They wanted to put the United States in the distilling business, limit supply, strictly regulate distribution . . . Other members of the Roosevelt Liquor Committee opposed this bitterly, said the American public had had fourteen years of thirst-regulation, would not stand for any more. They said a government monopoly could not be worked out in the few days remaining before final repeal . . . Roosevelt agreed with the latter, but otherwise backed up Tugwell and Wallace. He favored the strictest possible government control under the AAA and NRA. As a result the distillers debated whether they should not jump the traces and take their case to the public . . . But the shadow of defeat in North and South Carolina was too much. They remembered the latent power of the dry forces, the old Anti-Saloon League . . . Roosevelt had his way.

Old Stuff

The mother of Georgia's youthful Senator Dick Russell is mighty proud of her boy—but she doesn't believe in spoiling him.

While he was still Governor of the State she attended a large banquet in his honor. When he entered the hall everyone rose—except his mother.

A woman at her table, who did not know, was surprised, inquired if she did not approve of standing for the Governor.

"No, I don't," was the

A FEW months ago an English illustrated paper published a joke which struck me as having merit. When I repeated it in company a gentleman who is supposed to know nearly all the jokes in the world told me that in slightly different guise the same wheeze was current on the Pacific Coast twenty years ago. He may or may not have been wrong. In any event, I like the British version. A couple from the country have come up to London for a week's visit. They have seats in the first gallery for a performance of a society drama. To them the play proves exceedingly tiresome. One of the intervals the husband, stifling a yawn, turns to his deeply bored wife. "What comes next?" he asks. She consults the program. "It says 'ere, 'Act four, time as Act one!'" "Ow!" he exclaims, "let's 'op it. I couldn't sit through all the awful mess again."

Canadian Wins "Wheat" Title

CHICAGO, Dec. 5. — Frank Isackson of Elfron, Saskatchewan, today was the "wheat king" of the world for 1933, giving the Dominion a clean sweep of the grain championships at the International Live Stock Exposition. RECORD BROKEN

Rogers shattered a tradition at the exposition when he won the reserve championship on his sample of Durum wheat of the "Mindur variety," weighing 66.1 pounds to the bushel. Up to this year a United States exhibitor has always won either the championship or the reserve award in wheat.

From the class champion of Aberdeen Angus, Shorthorns and Herefords, Walter Biggar of Dalbeattie, Scotland, today will choose the grand champion beef steer, the most coveted award of the $25,000,000 show.

Bismarck Model from Pine Plains, N. Y., and owned by Orville Thorne was chosen the original steer of the Aberdeen Angus to compete against the Shorthorn and Hereford champions today for the grand championship. Two years ago Thorne won the grand championship with an Angus calf.

Dumdum Bullets

The dumdum bullet is a bullet formerly used in the British army, where it was called "Mark IV." It resembled the ordinary service bullet except that the leaden core was left uncovered. By striking the casing weak at the apex, the bullet spreads out immediately on striking a bone, usually with fatal results. It was first made at the Dum Dum arsenal in India.

BRIDGE CLUB IS ENTERTAINED
 The tables of contract bridge were assembled at the home of Mrs. Glen Geib, S. Scioto-st., Monday evening, when she entertained the members of her club and one guest, Miss Gladys Steenrod.

The enjoyable evening at the card tables was concluded with the awarding of high score prizes to Mrs. A. H. Rogers and Mrs. Charles Owens.

PYTHIAN SISTERS TO ELECT OFFICERS
 The regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the K. of P. hall, at which time officers will be elected.

The Pythian Sisters will sew for the Red Cross at Memorial hall Wednesday at 10 a. m. A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon.

QUESTS AT DINNER
IN WASHINGTON C. H.

Loring Wittich, violinist in an ensemble which played for the Elks' memorial service at Hillsboro, Sunday, and Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, pianist, this city, were guests at an evening dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Lang Johnson, of Washington C. H., following the service.

The dinner complimented the hostess and her daughter, Miss Betty Johnson, talented young violinist, who played in the ensemble and rendered several solos at the memorial service.

S. S. CLASS MEETS
WITH MRS. MARION

Twenty-five members of Mrs. George Marion's Sunday school class of the Methodist Episcopal church enjoyed their annual Christmas party at Mrs. Marion's home on the Lancaster-pk., Monday evening. Assisting the hostess in entertaining the group were Miss Kathryn Marion, Miss Virginia Nelson and Miss Evelyn Adkins.

Green and red were predominant in the attractive decorations throughout the home, with bittersweet placed to advantage in the rooms where a most enjoyable evening was spent in games.

Prizes were awarded Miss Elizabeth Tolbert and Miss Katherine Kirkpatrick. One new member, Mrs. Marvin Rhoades, was taken in at last night's party.

Liberal donations were received by members of the class to be distributed to needy families in the city.

Bringing the pleasant hours to a close the hostesses served a delectable salad course at the small tables lighted with red tapers.

The hostess committee for the January meeting includes Mrs. P. S. Herberholz, Miss Mildred Ruffer, Miss Bernice Evans and Miss Katherine Kirkpatrick.

Architecture Discussed by Monday Club

Primitive American Architecture and Pioneering and the Great Expansion were the subjects discussed at the regular Monday club session held in the club rooms last night.

Mrs. Howard Jones in presenting the first subject stated that when the first white men reached American shores they found an astounding civilization in Mexico, Central America, northern part of South America and the south western section of the present United States.

Architecture is a social art, creation of many men, and each nation creates its own type. Thus the Mayan people, builders of temples and pyramids surpassing those of ancient Egypt, builders of roads and causeways more enduring than the famed Roman highways were the originators of the architectural features known as the false arch, the flying facade, the terrace. They had a wonderful knowledge of astronomy and their buildings were always properly orientated with the windows usually facing the west. It is thought the ruins of the ancient palaces and temples now found were their public buildings, the Mayan people themselves living in small wooden homes grouped around the civic center.

Public buildings were of two types, temples and palaces. The Mayan people were the Greeks of America, the Aztecs the Romans. Later came the cliff dwellers and the pit dwellers of Arizona, Utah, New Mexico, etc. These ruins are found extending from southern Colorado to Central Mexico, those of the Mesa Verde Canyons being the best known. This ancient cliff dwellers were the originators of the apartment house idea of the set-back, a feature we see in all modern skyscrapers, but none of these primitive people knew of the principle of the chimney. Smoke was allowed to get out and fresh air to get in, in a most haphazard manner.

Mrs. Nickerson told of the march of the pioneer westward. European settlers introducing iron and bricks. The settlers' first need was shelter and food. Usually a dugout or cave served as shelter until a log cabin could be built. On the frontier a log cabin striped of bark was a mark of wealth. A two story home—luxury in wealth. Due to scarcity of timber on western plains, homes were usually dugouts or sod houses. Necessity of building many homes and villages in a short period and the scarcity of building materials had a powerful effect on pioneer architecture, but usually the pioneer built as best he could with the materials at hand using the same forms as his forefathers as nearly as possible.

At the short business session preceding the program, Mrs. R. H. Bales was made chairman of the work of the club and will soon have a display of their handiwork.

ALTAR SOCIETY
ELECTS OFFICERS

At the monthly meeting of the Altar society of St. Joseph's church held Monday evening in the church basement, officers for the coming year were elected. Mrs. Ralph Head was named president; Mrs. L. J. Hall, vice president; Miss Margaret Shea, secretary, and Miss Mary Howard, treasurer.

Plans were completed for the Rotary-Ann banquet to be held next Thursday, also for the card party to be given Dec. 14. Mrs. Ralph Head is chairman of the card party and Miss Mary McKenzie is in charge of the banquet.

Christmas

For piquancy with the Christmas feast serve a cranberry cocktail! Have you ever tasted this tempting drink? Mixed with ginger ale, it is elegance itself!

Cook 4 C. cranberries in 4 C. of water until all the skins pop open. That will take only about 5 minutes. Strain through a cheese cloth. Bring the juice to the boiling point, add 2/3 C. sugar and boil for 2 minutes. Chill and serve the juice cold.

If you are one of those persons who likes the cranberries with the bird, treat yourself to a cranberry salad or cranberry sauce so you can have the tartness with the feast.

Cranberry Salad

1 C. chopped cranberries
 1 pkg. lemon gelatin
 1 C. boiling water
 1 C. sugar
 1 C. water
 1 C. celery, cut in cubes
 1/2 C. nut meats

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Cook cranberries with sugar and water and add to the gelatin mixture. Let cool and add the celery and nut meats, and mold. Chill and serve with mayonnaise.

And the Day After

There usually is some turkey or chicken to be used after the big holiday and the aftermath of hash is not a joke. A Chicken or Turkey Ragout may save the day, however, and it is at least worth a try.

Use:

1 slice onion 2 Tbsp. flour
 2 Tbsp. bacon fat 1/2 C. liquid
 1 tsp. lemon juice 1/4 tsp. pepper
 1 C. peas 1/4 tsp. mace
 1 C. chopped browned mushrooms
 1 C. diced cold chicken or turkey

Melt the bacon fat, brown the onion slice, then remove it. Add the flour, then the liquid, which may be broth or the liquid from canned vegetables, and allow to thicken slightly. Add the rest of the ingredients and place in a greased baking dish. Cover and place in a slow oven (275 degrees) for 1 1/2 to 2 hours.

When it is to be hash, remember that in using leftover meat in any way, use only as much as will be needed for that meal. Do not make up all the leftover and then reheat it for another meal because leftover meat should be heated but once. Carefully prepare the meat by removing all skin, bone and bits of fat and then cut the meat into pieces of fairly equal size. A much more appetizing offering to the family table is produced if you are particular in preparing the left-over meat that is to be used.

Chicken and Rice

1 C. rice 2 Qts. boiling water 1 Tbsp. salt
 Wash the rice in cold water and drop into the boiling salted water. When tender, drain in sieve, allowing cold water to flow through.

2 Tbsp. butter 1/4 C. cold diced chicken
 2 Tbsp. flour 1/4 tsp. pepper
 1/2 C. milk 1/4 tsp. nutmeg

Make a white sauce by melting the butter, adding the flour, then the milk and the salt, and cooking until thickened. Add the cooked rice, chicken and the rest of the mixture. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Serve hot with crisp strips of toast.

Serpentine Mother of Asbestos

When the earth's crust first hardened into rock, millions and millions of years ago, some of the veins in the rock were filled with a stuff called serpentine. It is this serpentine which is the mother of asbestos. Mined from rock in Georgia and Canada, serpentine is ground up into soft, white pulpy stuff which is very light and quite tough. The pulp is then broken up, cleaned and curled like wool for weaving into cloth.

"it's toasted"

—why Luckies taste better, smoother

On certain mountains in the Near East is a limited collar of earth—called in Turkish, "Yacca." Tobaccos grown there cost as high as $1.00 a pound. Carefully they are examined, leaf by leaf. Often it takes a man a whole day to select two pounds of certain of these fine tobaccos. Lucky Strike is the world's biggest user of fine Turkish tobaccos. For these tender, delicate Turkish leaves are blended with choice tobaccos from our own Southland—to make your Lucky Strike a cigarette that is fully packed—round and firm—free from loose ends.
